House Studies Indefinite Draft Extension

LEADERS HIT SENATE BILL OF 18 MONTHS

Chamber Speeds Preliminary Action Toward Vote on Measure Monday.

PASSAGE PREDICTED

May Declares No Trouble Expected In Gaining Bill's Support.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The house wasted no time today in calling up army service extension legislation, and administration leaders stood firm for an indefinite extension in preference to the 18-month maximum just voted by the senate.

The senate approved the 18-month extension by a 45-to-30 tally late yesterday, providing $10-a-month more pay for service beyond one year, and house leaders promptly ordered an unusual forenoon session today with the determination to get to a vote by Monday.

Manifesting no misgivings as to how the house vote would go, Chairman May (D-Ky) of the military committee predicted the chamber would disregard the senate's 18-month time limitation.

"I'm getting sick of this question of whether we are going to defend our country for six more months, or 12 more months or 18 more months," May told reporters. "I believe in national defense without any time limit."

The heart of the senate measure was the provision that would add a maximum of 18 months additional military duty to the present "hitches" of all selectees, national guardsmen, reserves, and regular army enlisted men. All are now subject to only one year's service, except the regulars who sign up for three years.

But before the measure passed the senate wrote in a provision giving all men with more than a year's service a $10-a-month pay boost. This would have the effect

New York Story Irks Industry Heads, They Cite Defense Effort

Mansfield industrial officials sharply denied today a statement made by a writer for the Wall Street Journal of New York that industry here "wasn't interested" in national defense contracts.

Excerpts from the story, written by B. H. McCormack, were reprinted in The News-Journal yesterday.

Among the first to protest were George W. Stephens, president of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, and James M. Hill, president of Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company.

Joining in the protest was B. W. Clark of Pittsburgh, vice president of the appliance division of Westinghouse, who was in Mansfield today.

All three of these firms were mentioned by name in McCormack's article as accounting for two-thirds of the industrial employment in Mansfield. He wrote that none of the companies was producing for defense.

These officials issued statements today in which they charged the writer with issuing "false information," and other manufacturers voiced their protests at his statement that there is "not much enthusiasm" among Mansfield business men for defense work.

Chamber of Commerce officials estimated that more than $1,000,000 in government contracts have been let to Mansfield firms and that industrial plants here "are interested" in obtaining defense work contracts.

A survey of News-Journal files revealed that award of these contracts had been reported when the information was available.

A recent News-Journal survey showed that numerous Mansfield firms were working on defense orders and that officials of the companies had bids in Washington for additional contracts.

The most recent of these contracts to be awarded was an order to the Ohio Brass company totaling $340,000 for war materials.

Among other firms working on government orders besides Westinghouse, Mansfield Tire and Empire, are the Ideal Electric Manufacturing company, Barnes Manufacturing company, Taylor Metal Products company, Richland Auto Parks company and the Hoff Manufacturing comapny.

Stephens revealed for the first time that Mansfield Tire was engaged in producing defense goods.

He said the company had already shipped defense orders totaling $253,000, and was working at the present time on contracts totaling more than $330,000.

The material being produced includes mostly heavy tire casings for equipping the army's motorized units.

He said, in addition, that the company was supplying tires to the U. S. post office department in Washington.

"I do not know where the reporter for the Wall Street Journal, B. H. McCormack, secured his information; but he must have secured it from someone who did not know the true facts," Stephens asserted.

"The article proves that Mr. McCormack did not go to the

11-YEAR-OLD GIRL SHOT IN HEAD, LIVES

Part of Bullet Lodges In Brain of Youngster as Result of Accidental Shooting.

RETAINS CONSCIOUSNESS

Joann Lehnhart Slides Into Path of Missle Near Children's Home.

Shot accidentally through the head yesterday afternoon while she was attending a picnic with four playmates in a woodlot near the Richland county children's home, Joann Lehnhart, 11, Oak street road, was in General hospital today with fragments of a 22 caliber bullet lodged in her brain.

Physicians did not regard the child's condition as serious and said an operation probably will not be necessary. The bullet entered the right side of the head above the ear and came out on top of the head, passing about an inch below the surface of the skull.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson said the bullet was fired by Jack Davis, 14, of 91 East Fourth street, who was shooting at bottles from a rock cliff above the girls. The shooting occurred about 2:30 p. m.

The bullet struck the Lehnhart girl as she slid down the side of the ledge to recover a bottle that had rolled away from the picnic site, the sheriff said.

The injured girl, apparently dazed by the shot, jumped to her feet and started to run away from her friends, Robinson said. Young Davis caught her and carried her to the children's home from where she was taken to the hospital. The girl has been conscious since the shooting and able to talk to friends.

The sheriff, Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer and Prosecutor Harold Lutz, who questioned the Davis boy and his playmate, Richard Wilson, 15, of 17 Hedges street, agreed the shooting was accidental. Authorities said the girl scrambled into the path of the

REPORT KIEV SURROUNDED BY GERMANS

Claim Over 30,000 Russians Captured In Destruction of Red Sixth Army.

BERLIN BOMBED AGAIN

Britain Prepares To Send Indian Troops To Aid Soviet Defense.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW — (U.P.) — Russian reports said today that a Red army counter-offensive at an unspecified sector has virtually wiped out the 20th German tank division.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's high command reported today German troops knifing deep into the lower Ukraine had destroyed a Red army force trapped southeast of Uman, 125 miles south of Kiev, capturing more than 30,000 prisoners and the supreme commander of the Russian sixth army.

Earlier, unofficial Nazi reports said Kiev itself, the Ukraine capital, had been surrounded. But the high command report indicated the main German thrust was directed at cutting off the Black sea port of Odessa, some 140 miles below Uman.

Mystery concerning the overnight bombing of Berlin—by unofficial tally the 80th raid there of the war—developed when a source in London with Soviet contacts said Russian warplanes had attacked the reich capital.

By contrast, the Germans said the raiders were "undoubtedly British," and the British said no RAF planes went near Berlin.

While the Germans pictured their armies as plunging headlong against wobbling Soviet defenses, Russia's Marshal Semeon Timoshenko voiced a new note of confidence in this appeal to peoples in German-occupied territories:

"Join your comrades and fight, starve, shoot and blow up the Germans and help the Red army rout Hitler's dogs. Spill blood for blood, death for death, for the hour of victory is near."

Dispatches from Istanbul quoted well-informed sources there as saying that Britain was prepared to send several divisions of Indian troops through Afghanistan to bolster Russia's defenses in the oil-rich Caucasus.

These sources reported that Afghanistan would formally protest the passage of British troops into

Two OSR Inmates Gone— And So's Officer's Auto

Pair Flees From Reformatory Cornfield, Car Taken From Garage at Night.

Two inmates of Ohio State Reformatory made good their escape from the reformatory farm late yesterday presumably in an auto stolen from a Mansfield policeman's garage.

Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent of the institution, reported that Paul Hoover, 18, and William Hall, 19, two Columbus youths admitted last February, escaped while working in a cornfield on the farm.

Mansfield police today informed state highway patrolmen that they believed the escapees had stolen an auto owned by Patrolman George F. Yoakum to flee the city. State patrolmen were asked to keep a lookout for the two youths.

Glattke said that the Columbus inmates were working in the cornfield all day and that their absence was discovered late in the afternoon. A posse was organized to search for them but the tall corn was believed to have given them a perfect cover for slipping off the grounds.

Police believed the inmates hid in the northern part of the city until after dark and then broke into Yoakum's garage at

BACK SEAWAY

Rivers, Harbors Committee Approves Project.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house rivers and harbors committee approved today the $285,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway and the $160,000,000 Florida ship canal for inclusion in an omnibus rivers and harbors bill soon to be submitted to congress.

Committeemen reported the vote on the controversial seaway, advocated by President Roosevelt as a national defense project, was 17 to 8 and on the Florida ship canal 14 to 10.

The committee adopted a provision calling for tolls on the Florida canal but rejected suggestions that tolls be provided for in the seaway development.

Chairman Mansfield (D-Texas) said that under treaties with Canada congress could not enact legislation requiring tolls on the St. Lawrence waterway.

TRAIN KILLS MANSFIELDER

Body Found Beside Flasher on North Main; 7 Die In Ohio Traffic.

A Mansfield resident was killed when struck by an eastbound Baltimore and Ohio train near the North Main street crossing early today and seven other Ohioans, including three children, were killed in traffic accidents reported overnight.

Fred Bates, 45, colored, 259 North Franklin avenue, was found dead at 5:41 a. m. at the foot of a safety flasher signal at the Main street crossing. C. E. Greer, B. & O. watchman, reported the discovery to police.

Dr. L. B. McCullough, Richland county coroner, said that Bates was obviously struck by a train a few hours before being found and died of a fractured neck and legs.

McCullough said he believed the body was thrown several feet from the tracks by an east bound train.

A truck-auto crash two miles north of Gettysburg in Drake county took the lives of three Dayton residents, Ruth Cotter and Paul Eckenbrecht, both 20, and Paul Furnas, 19.

Two 11-year-old girls, Leitha Breit and Margaret Bell, were struck and killed by a passenger train as they ran along the tracks at Alliance.

The other grandmothers are: Mrs. F. R. Reed, 276 Rowland avenue; Mrs. Carl Gatton, 194 Bowland road; Mrs. Louis Heuss, 201 South Mulberry street, and Mrs. Walter C. Becker, 804 Andover road.

U. S. Garrison In Iceland Gets Reinforcements.

REYKJAVIK, Iceland —(U.P.)— Disclosure was permitted today that a large American convoy arrived here recently with further re-enforcements for the American garrison in Iceland.

When the sirens sounded, the population, which had heard air raid alarms previously, ran to shelters. Shortly after British troops entered Iceland, precautionary measures were taken, including the establishment of auxiliary squads and erection of concrete shelters and other refuges.

DEFENSE TAX BOOST URGED

Morgenthau Asks That All Exemptions Be Reduced To Absolute Minimum.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., today asked for a "substantial lowering" of personal income tax exemptions and urged restoration of the tax bill's original $3,500,000,000 goal.

Testifying before the senate finance committee, Morgenthau declared that it was of utmost necessity that all exemptions from taxation be reduced to the "absolute minimum."

He was the first senate witness on the tax bill, which the house passed in a form that was about $300,000,000 short of the desired total.

Morgenthau asked for an "all out" defense tax program that would tap additional sources that have ability to pay.

This program, he continued, should involve lowering of personal exemptions and consequent broadening of the income tax base, not only to produce additional revenue but to give millions of Americans in the lower income groups an opportunity—"a welcome opportunity"—to make a direct contribution to defense through taxes.

His recommendation for lower personal exemptions followed a last-minute plea to the house by President Roosevelt for such action a week ago. The house ig-

INTEREST LAGS

Only 8 Democrats, 1 Republican Cast Absentee Ballots.

Richland county election board officials had further proof today that Mansfield voters are showing little interest in the municipal primary next Tuesday.

Only eight absentee ballots were cast before the deadline last night, the lowest number in recent years, clerks said. Seven of the eight ballots were cast by Democratic voters, with William Depler, who is attending Ohio Northern university at Ada, casting the lone Republican ballot.

There are no contests on the Republican ticket and board officials predict the G. O. P. vote will be the lightest in years. With four contests, Democrats have more reason to be interested in the primary and are expected to go to the polls in larger numbers Tuesday.

South American Pilots Will Be Trained at City Airport

Mansfield municipal airport will become the site of a government training center for foreign pilots, it was disclosed today by James R. Harrington, manager.

Civil Aeronautics authority officials in Chicago last night informed Harrington that approximately 24 fliers from South America would be sent to Mansfield within the next 60 days for advanced pilot training.

W. E. Barton, superintendent of the government's pilot training service informed Harrington by long distance telephone that the fliers were to be given an instructors course.

The men, all college graduates, will be billeted in the new barracks now under construction at the port.

As the result, Harrington said, dormitory accommodations would be enlarged to house approximately 50 men instead of 20 as had been originally planned.

Mansfield was one of the few sites in the nation selected for training the fliers. Only 150 men will be given the course by the government through the new hemisphere defense program.

The fliers at the completion of the course will return to their native countries to become instructors for their respective governments, Harrington said.

The course which the pilots will be given will be similar to the CPT advanced training program inaugurated at the port several months ago.

Natchez Society Groups Fight Over Tourist Trade

By EDMOND LE BRETON

NATCHEZ, Miss—(The Special News Service)—Some things are brewed at Natchez tea tables that can't be handled in porcelain cups.

First it was the big-scale business developed by society women of this 235-year-old city. They did it by donning hoopskirts and staging an annual pilgrimage for tourists to gape at the vestiges of old south opulence in Natchez' pre-Civil war mansions.

Now it is the fight between two factions of Natchez society over the business, and the blow-off may come Aug. 12 when Chancellor R. W. Cutrer begins hearing the case of the Natchez Garden club versus the Pilgrimage Garden club.

The chancellor hopefully has ordered several delays in the case with the recommendation that "You ladies compose your difficulties for the good of Natchez." But spokesmen for both sides say they aren't budging an inch, and the chancellor says the present delay is the last.

Natchez bystanders are predicting tourists coming to next spring's pilgrimage will see a civil war more in keeping with the blitz era than with the 1860 costumes

NAZI FORCES DRIVE SOUTH UPON ODESSA

Report More Than 30,000 Russians Captured In Kiev Sector.

the U. S. S. R. but ultimately would yield.

In the north, the Nazi high command said German columns driving toward Leningrad had captured Wesenberg, 68 miles southeast of the old czarist capital, and penetrated to the Gulf of Finland.

If true, this would indicate that the Russian-held capital of Estonia, Tallinn, is cut off by land. It would mean, too, that the Russian Baltic fleet was in jeopardy from German guns pressing toward its big base at Kronstadt.

German reports said fighting was in progress within 25 miles of Tallinn.

Nazi dispatches indicated that the whole northwest part of Estonia, bounded by tidewater on two sides, was surrounded by German troops on the two other sides.

Hitler's field headquarters also declared that German and Finnish troops driving on Leningrad from the north, in a giant squeeze maneuver, were "making further successful progress."

London military quarters said there were indications the Germans were advancing into southwest Russia in a move to encircle the key port of Odessa, on the Black sea, and that the main Odessa-Kiev railroad line had been cut.

Meanwhile, the possibility arose that Russian warplanes had bombed Berlin during the night for the first time in the war.

The Germans reported that hostile planes attacked the capital overnight for the 80th time, killing some civilians and inflicting minor property damage. London officials said the RAF had not raided Berlin.

From their nearest bases, either in Estonia or in the Smolensk sector, Soviet planes would have to fly more than 600 miles to raid Berlin—1,200 miles round trip.

The Soviet high command, officially labelling Hitler's claims of vast successes as "Arabian fairy tales," declared that the 48-day-old struggle had cost the Germans more than 1,500,000 men against 600,000 Soviet losses, and termed the blitzkrieg a complete failure.

According to Soviet figures, the ratio of Nazi losses would be nearly 3-1, or about the normal toll for an attacking army.

Russian military dispatches again reported fierce overnight fighting in the familiar sectors of Kakisalmi, 75 miles north of Leningrad; Smolensk, 230 miles west of Moscow; Bel Tserkov, 50 miles southwest of Kiev and in Estonia.

The Soviet high command, countering Nazi claims of having broken the Stalin line, declared that actually no such line of fortifications ever existed and that the fiction of a vast Russian defense works comparable to France's Maginot line was invented by the Germans to justify their tremendous losses.

As to the German report of 895,000 Russian prisoners taken, the Red army communique commented,

"Occupying a Soviet district, the Fascists immediately and forcibly mobilize the population for hard labor . . . and drive them to the rear, declaring them to be war prisoners.

The Russians said the Germans lost 6,000 tanks compared to their own losses of 3,000; 8,000 cannon compared to 7,000, and 6,000 planes compared to 4,000.

The first anniversary of the opening of the battle of Britain when German and British planes clashed in the greatest air battles the world has ever seen found the RAF carrying on its own day and night offensive against occupied France and western Germany while the Germans directed small forces against Britain.

London said the main objectives of last night's raids were Essen, Hamm and Dortmund.

From Ankara came reports that Germany had warned Iran she would sever diplomatic relations with this strategic Middle East country if German nationals were expelled as Britain has asked.

In Berlin, a Nazi spokesman denied the Ankara report asserting that Iran had already rejected British demands for the ousting of Germans and that the reich had every reason to be satisfied with Iran's attitude.

RAF Raids Cause Great Damage.

LONDON —(AP)—Great damage was caused "and widespread fires left burning" after RAF night attacks on Essen, Dortmund and Hamm, an air ministry communique reported today.

Besides these attacks, it said other British planes blasted docks in the French port of Boulogne, Nazi-held airbases in Denmark and northern France and shipping off the Dutch coast.

But there was no mention of an air assault on Berlin, which was announced officially in Berlin as having been made last night and denied in official British sources.

(This denial suggested the possibility the raid reported by Berlin might have been made by Russian planes although the Red air force had not previously made such an attack.)

Just a year ago the Luftwaffe threw 300 bombers and 500 fighters against a channel convoy to start the greatest air battles the world has known. On that day the Germans lost 53 planes but continued their attack until Oct. 31 at a cost put by the British at 2,375 planes.

Rome Says Reds Leave War Zone.

ROME — (AP) — Italian newspapers alleged today that 25,000,000 Russians were being moved back into the interior of their country, from the war zone.

Virtually the entire population of the Ukraine, northwest Russia and central Russia to several hundred miles east of Moscow, was said to be on the move.

The newspapers carried the allegations in dispatches said one Turkish traveler claimed to have seen part of the migration from a train.

He was quoted that a great, gray, serpentine line of humanity extended across the plains scores of miles, beyond the horizon, and the thing that impressed him most was the silence with which it moved.

The newspapers said only harvesters, workers in war industries, and saboteurs were being left behind.

Japan Complains Of Encirclement.

TOKYO — (AP) — The Japanese declared today that their empire is ringed by the military, political and economic power of the United States, Britain, China and the Netherlands but that it would be easy to break the economic encirclement if Japan adopts "the German fashion."

There was nothing specific in the latter comment to indicate that more than a bloodless power campaign was suggested. It came from one of Japan's most authoritative naval experts, Lieut. Com. Tota Ishimaru.

"Manchukuo, China, Indo-China and Thailand have joined the co-prosperity sphere. Now we can draw on Indo-China and Thailand for iron, coal and rice and other food.

"Getting the (Netherlands) Indies oil and Malay rubber is a bit difficult, but should be a cinch if we tackle the problem after the German fashion."

In a dispatch from Bangkok capital of Thailand, Domei News Agency said there was every indication the United States, Great Britain and China were making efforts to check Japan and that encirclement had been tightened by establishment of British air bases in Malaya and Burma. Domei added that Britain had plans for strengthening the defense of the Burma road by closer co-operation with the Chungking government.

(The official Thai radio commentator in a broadcast from Bangkok said last night,

"Thailand is extremely grateful to those offering her protection, but begs to decline same with thanks.") trouble of checking the statement to learn whether or not the information represented the truth."

Hill said it was "unfortunate" that McCormack should report "such information."

He said Empire had a backlog of orders totaling approximately 40,000 to 50,000 tons of sheet steel, with about 40 per cent of the tonnage to be used either directly or indirectly for defense purposes.

By comparison, Hill pointed out, a recent survey of the steel industry showed that only 12 per cent of sheet and strip steel capacity is going into defense needs.

Most of the steel produced by Empire, he said, was used by the machine tool industry and for the construction of equipment to be used by the army's mechanized forces.

The company has on its payroll nearly 1,500 employes and is operating at 100 per cent capacity, seven days a week, Hill added.

Clark pointed out that although the Mansfield Westinghouse plant at present is not engaged in defense production, that the company was prepared to handle certain defense orders.

He said Westinghouse was one of the first large industrial plants to organize for production of defense goods on a planned basis.

"Surveys were completed long ago and were placed before governmental agencies that would be interested in procurement of defense materials, with the offer of every resource of manpower, technical knowledge and facility needed for defense effort," he said.

The company, he said, had been negotiating for the past 60 days on a defense order totaling $4,000,000 for the Mansfield plant.

"Other business is under negotiation and every effort is being made to the end, especially, of continued employment of Mansfield people," he added.

"We want defense orders and are making every effort we know how to make, to find the kind of defense business we are equipped to handle."

of upping the present base pay of a private soldier to $40 a month after the first year.

Its sponsors asserted it offered an incentive for extra service which would help smooth the rocky road they expected the legislation to encounter in the house.

One house threat was the announced intention of a Republican group, headed by Rep. Short (Mo), to fight for the complete exemption of selectees from additional duty, and limit the service extension to regulars, reservists and guardsmen.

House leaders, however, exhibited no great worry about the forecasts of the rocky legislative road ahead.

The senate reached its decision on the legislation after seven days of debate. Shouts of "vote" arose frequently toward the end, but before the final ballot was reached administration forces first had to beat off a series of amendments.

nored the suggestion. Mr. Roosevelt asked that the exemption for married persons be reduced from $2,000 to $1,500 and that for single persons from $800 to $750.

Other salient recommendations by Morgenthau:

1. Imposition of a more effective excess profits tax on corporations.

2. Requirements that husbands and wives file a single joint return. The house had defeated this provision, which had been expected to raise about $323,000,000 annually.

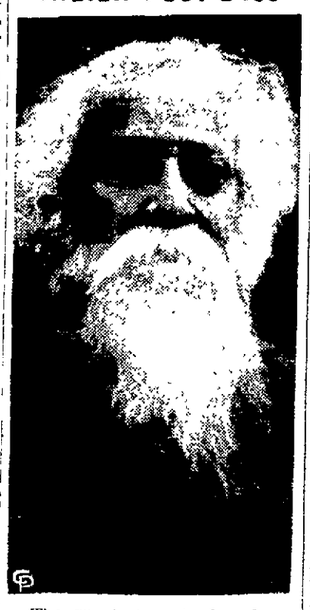

3. Elimination of tax escape by certain concerns engaged in extracting natural resources, notably oil. He said they have been granted unjustifiably large allowances for depletion.

4. Removal of federal tax exemptions from new state and local securities.

5. More revenue from estate and gift taxes.

As part of his recommendation for lowering the personal exemptions, Morgenthau urged that the method of tax computation be simplified for the benefit of the millions of new taxpayers with small incomes who would be brought in. This also corresponded to the president's recent suggestion.

City, County Leaders Express Disappointment Over Two Drives.

Little interest was shown in the campaign in rural sections of the county, Russell L. Miller, county chairman, stated.

$100 UNDER GOAL

Bucyrus is still short nearly $100 in the campaign to raise funds for the United Service organization although the national goal was reached this week.

A total of $802 has been contributed in the local campaign to raise $900. The campaign will be continued throughout the nation until fall, according to information received here.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 8, 1941.

And so this is "the World of Tomorrow," which was being so highly publicized a couple of years ago!

Just to keep from getting out of the habit, it will probably be worthwhile to vote at next Tuesday's primaries.

With Harry Hopkins in the hero role and Josef Stalin substituted for Garcia, all that is needed is an Elbert Hubbard to produce a new masterpiece.

Plight of Non-Defense Industries

SOME IDEA of the extent to which war, and preparations for defense, can disarrange the affairs of individuals and cities is gained from an article in the Wall Street Journal, to which reference was made in yesterday's News-Journal.

For the purposes of this article, Mansfield was chosen as a typical progressive American industrial city, with 12,000 of its 40,000 inhabitants dependent on industrial employment, and enjoying a steady flow of wages.

As was pointed out, however, practically all of this employment involves production of peace-time commodities—necessities and luxuries—which are classified as "durable consumer goods."

Now that there is likelihood of drastic limitations on this class of merchandise, to provide more materials for defense and aid-to-Britain, the problem of how to keep factories running, in the absence of defense orders, is becoming serious.

While Mansfield's inclination to avoid the danger of mushroom growth through bringing some big defense operation here seems well founded, there is no apparent reason why the normal number of industrial employes required here, including many long-time residents and home owners, should not share in defense production, to the extent of existing facilities.

In the rush of preparations for defense, there has probably been little time for government agencies to consider the problems of small cities and small industries, but this is a matter which must eventually be given attention and it is time for people to be thinking about it—and urging action.

For the Preservation of Freedom

"THERE is but one way to make sure that help sent to Britain actually reaches Britain," said the New York Times recently. "There is but one way to insure the freedom of the seas. There is but one way to protect our own domestic freedom. That one way is to send our cargoes to Britain under the cover of our own naval guns, and if cargoes or ships are interfered with by Nazi pirates, shoot the pirates down."

That point of view is based on belief that Hitler's system of total dictatorship and our system of total freedom cannot live in the same world. The triumph of Hitlerism would inevitably mean the end of individual freedom and free enterprise everywhere, and the death of social and economic democracy.

We are spending billions to aid England in fighting aggression, and we are spending more billions to defend ourselves against its spread to America. All of this is being done in the name of freedom and of the American way of life.

Only in a land where any man can go into any business he chooses and prosper to the limit of his talents and energies, can the people know true liberty. The private ownership of property—whether it be a home, a farm, a factory or a railroad—is the very foundation of freedom and democracy.

Our whole foreign policy today is based on the belief that liberty is in danger, and that every material resource of the United States must be given to building arms to defend it. That being the case, our domestic policy must have as its cardinal principle the perpetuation of freedom at home, and the maintenance of the private enterprise system which has made that freedom possible.

Temporary Sacrifices Necessary

WHATEVER inconveniences are necessitated by meeting the demands of America's defense program should be considered temporary rather than permanent.

As soon as Hitlerism has been defeated, sanity restored in Europe and the Far East, and security assured for "the American way of life," quick return to this nation's customary progress will become a matter of first interest.

When Production Director Knudsen sounded a warning the other day that reduction in production of vacuum cleaners might bring the old-time broom back into quite general use he probably meant no more than that it is vastly more important just now to save America by winning the war than it is to enjoy conveniences which have come to be considered necessities.

Even the suspension of silk shipments from Japan and the ban on use of silk for other than defense purposes, may be regarded as temporary. Under normal conditions of world trade, in time of peace, there is need for an interchange of surplus commodities between countries—as is now seen in the United States wheat surplus for which world markets are closed by war.

Certainly, if necessary, the American people can return to lower standards of living than those to which they have become accustomed, and hardships incident to war, or preparation for defense, will probably be philosophically accepted by a considerable majority of them.

Death of Mussolini's Son

ADVISED by his father, Benito Mussolini, to "live dangerously," the youthful Bruno Mussolini is now said to have "died gloriously" in a plane crash, while in the service of his country.

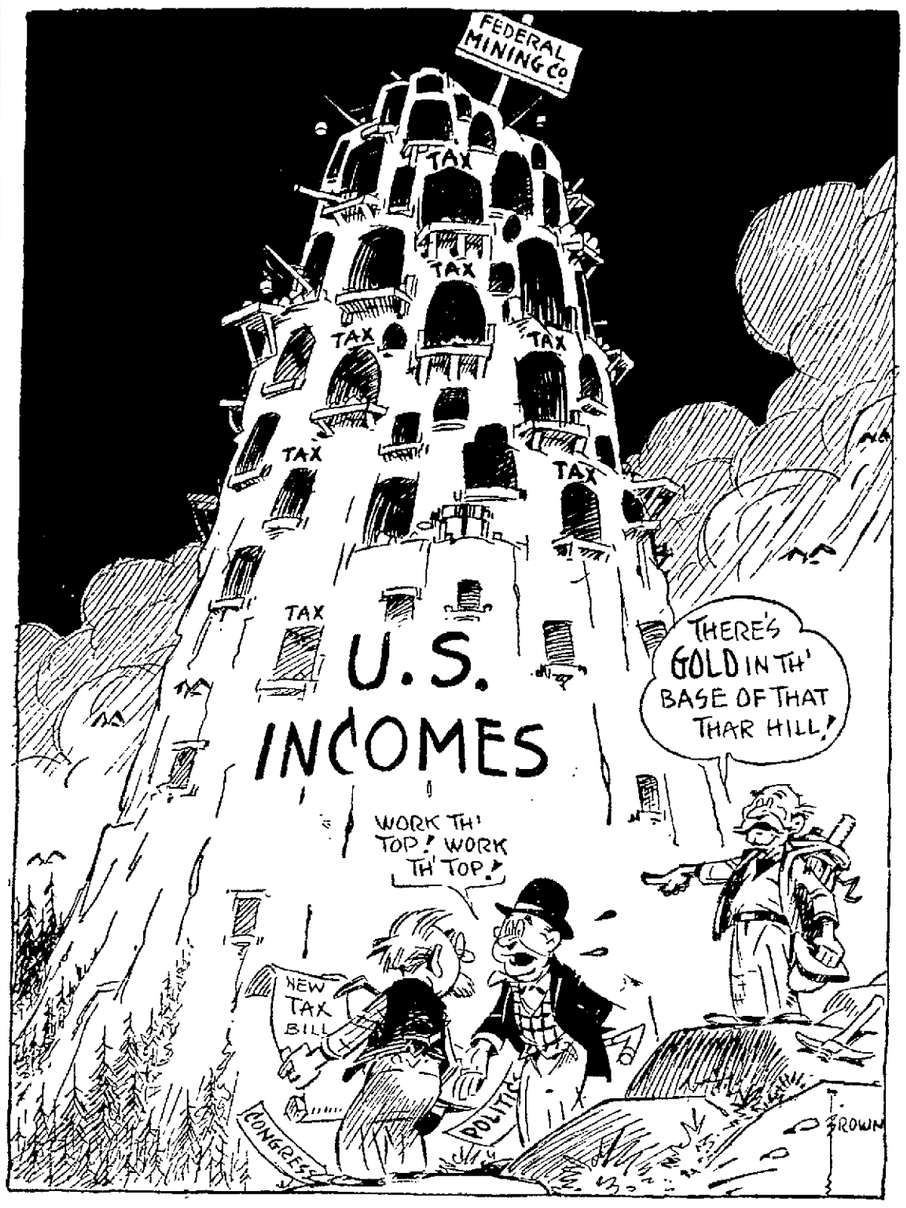

There is no reason why the tragic death of the son of Italy's dictator should be given attention beyond that of any other victim of war, soldier or civilian, yet it must appear, as a saddened family gathers at the bier of this 22-year-old boy, that some thought of the futility of war may enter the mind of even a dictator-father as he takes a last look at the face of his dead son.

The exiled Polish and Czechoslovakian governments are learning the need of mutual good will and co-operation, showing that adversity has its uses.

Jack Warwick, the Toledo Blade thinker, concludes that "What men need most in hot weather is something to take the place of coatpockets."

With the increase in food prices it's likely to become a question as to whether one can live as cheaply as two.

Don't Grin, Lady

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M WRITING this article as a tribute to Mrs. Agnes Mae Smith. I do not know Mrs. Smith, nor where she lives. My only contact with her life is an old photograph which appeared in an out-of-town paper, in connection with her divorce. But that photograph, alone, rates a royal salute and a couple of congressional medals.

Because why?

Because Mrs. Smith is neither smiling nor smirking, with her skirt hiked up way over her knees and a six inch grin beneath her pretty snozzle. Nor does she resemble the cat who has just gulped the canary. To the contrary, she looks properly harried and heart broken—as if she'd really been through the wringer. Wherefore, I could break into sonnets and sky-rockets . . . I'm that grateful!

Has it ever occurred to you, Partner, to study the photos of newly nominated divorcees? If so, you'll have noticed one surprising feature about the breed . . . they all look as if they were going to break into a rhumba. A moment before they were telling the Judge all about their broken hearts . . . relating the agonies and indignities suffered at the hands of the Monsters they had married. But now the divorce has been granted! And, quicker'n scat, their gloom has departed. As witness their photos. No longer are they sobbing softly over their broken dreams. Instead they are wreathed in dimples not to mention monthly hunks of alimony!

At which point you're probably going to blame it all on the news photographers. Don't. News photographers are, for the most part, busy, decent gentlemen with families of their own and Grade A standards. A great majority of them belong to a church to which divorce is as great and shameful a tragedy as murder. Debonair divorcees are no treat to them.

But photographers and their families must eat. They are there to give what said Divorcees like — and the Dear Public demands. So they take the Gals as they come — and they generally come smirking. In almost unbroken file they prance and preen across our pages — tittering, snickering, grinning carnivorously . . . all except Mrs. Agnes Mae Smith. For which, thanks be!

Divorce is evidently no laughing matter to young Mrs. Smith. Her eyes are hollowed with pain. Her soft lips struggle against a grief they can barely control. Here is a fine and sensitive person whose life has come to its darkest hour and who makes no effort to turn the occasion into a fiesta.

And that to this columnist is as it should be. Under no possible circumstances can divorce be considered a girlish or a boyish prank. It is an act which cuts at the very heart of the home and nation . . . and none regret it more than the honest man or woman who has been forced to accept its shabby solution.

So — lay off the laughter, lady! For the woman who can snicker over her wrecked marriage proves, by that very act, that she was never worthy to be a wife. The woman who can emerge triumphant from a divorce trial proves that she never knew the sacred mystery of marriage.

And so to a sad little ex-wife somewhere — Mrs. Agnes Mae Smith. I send my sympathy and deep respect. You've not only borne your own pain gallantly, my dear, but you have given this demoralized world a glimpse of that rarest and fast vanishing species—THE LADY. Thanks!

Timely Editorial

Always a Good Rule.

Prompted by a recent regrettable accident, the American Automobile association has prepared rules for guidance of civilian traffic in its relation to army convoys on public highways. One paragraph, applying to conditions most likely to be dangerous, deserves special attention:

"When approaching an intersection through which an army vehicle is moving, slow down. Determine that no additional vehicles are coming before driving through, even though the light is green."

Time will come when there will be fewer army convoys, but the rule should stand through all the years. A very large percentage of highway accidents occur at intersections.

The reason is that speeding drivers try to beat the light while others drive carelessly because of their confidence that a green light means "Go!"

While these conditions exist, the only safe way to approach an intersection is at reduced speed. "Slow down. Determine that no additional vehicles are coming before driving through, even though the light is green." It is a good rule.—Detroit News.

This Is Ohio

While Dr. Antoine Francois Saugrain, the first scientist of the Ohio valley, and two French friends were canoeing down the Ohio in the spring of 1788, they were attacked by Indians near the mouth of the Big Miami river, the two friends killed and Dr. Saugrain wounded and made captive.

Escaping from the Indians, Dr. Saugrain made his way to the log cabin village of what is now Louisville, Kentucky, and then returned to France. In April, 1790, he led a company of colonists to Gallipolis. Here he made and sold ink, thermometers, phosphorus lights for hunters, barometers and matches.

How It Started

Black Ivory.

That man takes as naturally to metaphor as a fish to water is indicated by his penchant sometimes passion to go figurative at the slightest inspiration.

Typical of these rhetorical flights is the expression black ivory, the allusion to African slaves who were apprehended and distributed to the world from the same locality and with as great profit as ivory itself.

A similar instance of this fanciful touch is the phrase black gold for oil, the reference here being to the crude liquid which is mined, in a different fashion, it is true, from gold, but taken from the earth, and netting large fortunes to many.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Japan Not Scared By Oil Embargo, Has Imported Two Years Supply

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Dinner guests at the home of Harold Ickes are likely to have a tough time these days. If they are wise, they will take along their razors, a pair of pajamas, and if they happen to be in the columning business, a typewriter.

For, once you get to the Ickes home for dinner, you find you can't get away until after breakfast. You spend the night. Reason is that Secretary Ickes lives on a farm about twenty miles from Washington and he objects to using extra gasoline for an extra trip back to town. So if you don't have to get home to close the windows or feed the baby, you wait and drive to town with him in the morning.

However, if you think being a lock-up dinner guest at the Ickes home is tough, consider the plight of Mrs. Ickes. Mrs. Ickes has two babies and a large chicken farm. And before there was a gasoline shortage and her husband became oil conservator, she used to dodge in and out of Washington once or twice a day to take the baby to the doctor, interview wholesale chicken dealers, or even have lunch with her husband.

Now when she goes to town, she has to get up in time to ride with the secretary of the interior, notoriously one of the earliest risers in the Roosevelt cabinet. Ickes leaves his farm in Maryland at 7:30 and gets to his desk about 8:10. Also he is one of the latest workers. So Mrs. Ickes not only comes to town early but she has to stay late—until her husband leaves his desk at about 6 p. m.

Of late, however, she has got even with him. If you notice the secretary of the interior coming to work in the morning with rather a sheepish expression, holding twelve pullets with their legs tied together, you will know that it's Mrs. Ickes' fault.

She has decided that she will not hang around her husband's office all day to save gas, and has made Harold carry her chickens to market.

Note—One way or another, Secretary and Mrs. Ickes have managed to cut their own use of gasoline by about 50 per cent.

Capital Chaff.

HARRY HOPKINS insists that the president dictate all letters to Winston Churchill himself. He says that relations between these two men are so important that not even a cabinet member should write to Churchill, only Roosevelt himself. . . . Trust-busting Thurman Arnold has a consent decree in the bag with the oil pipe-line operators. They were indicted for giving a rebate of 36 per cent to big oil companies using their lines; the little independents had to pay regular rates. They have now agreed to desist. . . . The director of British censorship for the Western Hemisphere was responsible for the new war department order by which the boys in the camps cannot write home about "matters pertaining to national defense." He warned that some of their letters were going to foreign countries.

Unscared Japanese.

BEST guess as to why the Japanese have not been scared by Roosevelt's embargo on gasoline and lubricating oil is that this embargo is almost exactly what he put into effect one year ago. Being slapped twice on the same wrist doesn't worry Tokyo.

As revealed exclusively in this column last year, a majority of the Roosevelt cabinet persuaded him in August to embargo all oil (not merely gasoline and lubricating oil, but even crude oil burned by the Japanese navy). Roosevelt was up in Hyde Park at the time, and the embargo was put over by Secretary Morgenthau, who lives next door to him in Dutchess county.

Roosevelt actually signed the oil embargo order. But when it got down to the secretary of state, who officially promulgates all executive orders, he protested so vigorously that Roosevelt changed his mind. Only aviation gasoline was embargoed.

However, the Japanese merely set up their own refineries and added tetraethyl to ordinary gasoline. Thus they got plenty of aviation gas, plus all other kinds of oil not affected by the embargo. Foreign oil companies in Japan were required to keep a year's supply on hand, and domestic use was severely rationed. Also a lot of aviation gas was bootlegged, and U. S. officials did almost nothing to stop it.

So the slap on the wrist Japan got one year ago merely warned her to set up refineries and lay in extra supplies for the slap she got last week. In the interim, she had imported not merely one year's supply of gas and oil, but nearly two years' supply.

One year ago, the U. S. navy estimated that it would take Japan four or five months to conquer the Dutch East Indies. But Japan at that time only had oil on hand to last her two and a half months. Today it might take Japan even longer, perhaps six months, to conquer the Dutch East Indies—but she has nearly two year's supply of oil with which to do it.

Note—This illustrates one essential difference between the Roosevelt and Churchill cabinets. When the British cabinet decides a major policy, a vote is taken, and the majority decision is carried out even if the prime minister happens to be on the minority side. But in Washington, if one cabinet member in charge of a certain policy says No, and if the president backs him up, the entire cabinet cannot overrule them.

Thus with Cordell Hull opposing an oil embargo against Japan last year, the entire cabinet could not overrule him. Also with Ickes opposing the sale of helium to Nazi zeppelins four years ago, the entire cabinet could not and did not budge him.

War Notes.

Eugene Grace of Bethlehem Steel warns that steel production will be retarded by the serious shortage of scrap iron. Last August Secretary Morgenthau also persuaded Roosevelt to embargo all shipments of scrap iron to Japan, but the state department changed it to apply only to No. 1 grade of scrap. Other grades still could be shipped and it was not for some months that the cabinet finally persuaded the state department to place an embargo on all scrap iron to Japan. . . . Despite the latest Japanese oil embargo, the Tatuta Maru carried 1,557 barrels of lubricating oil back to Tokyo by special U. S. dispensation. No wonder the Japanese have their fingers crossed as to whether we really mean it. . . . Few people realize the extent of Russian supplies. They have been requisitioning wool for ten years, have enough uniforms to clothe 10,000,000 men. . . . They also have the men to wear the uniforms. Ten years ago they had an army of 1,300,000 and for the last four years it has been 1,500,000. By calling all reservists up to the age of 30, Russia would have about 10,000,000 men. . . . Russian women do not work in the front lines. They are in the army, but in quartermaster jobs—distributing uniforms, cooking, etc. . . . The U. S. army is laying out a winter camp in the Rockies for training ski troops. The site is in the northern tip of Idaho.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The doughtiest old salt of them all, skipper Guy Lombardo, waved a nonchalant hand toward four speed boats and said, "There they are—my babies."

The "babies" were trim and fast and their names were Tempo-1, Tempo-2, Tempo-3 and Tempo-4. The skipper likes the name Tempo. Tempo is what makes the music go round and round. What makes the money come in, what makes him—by popular poll—the number one orchestra in the country today. Guy also has a yacht, and its name is—Tempo.

He had on a pair of old pants and there were fingerprints on them that showed that his hands had been covered with heavy, black motor oil. He likes to dig into the insides of motors. The only noise in the world to him that is half as sweet as the Lombardo tempo is the sweet hum of propellers. Racing is in his blood. It's hair-raising, sometimes, and he takes spills. But then how does he know he won't trip over a piccolo some night and bust his neck on a public dance floor?

IT'S old Number 4—Tempo-4—that is the Canadian's current "crush." He'll be at the wheel for the Lido Beach club trophy races, out at Reynolds' channel, early in August—and he can't wait to get started. Tempo-4 is 18 feet long and eight feet wide and where do you think Guy keeps her. In a boat house? Just an ordinary old boat house? You don't know Guy. He keeps Miss Tempo-4 inside his OWN house, at Freeport, L. I., which is so close to the water he can sit on his front porch and fish.

What makes Lombardo qualified to do these things is the fact that he can tear an entire motor to pieces, and put it together without having any spare parts left over.

Now a line on three of Guy's brothers who are also members of his musical organization. They are Carmen, Victor and Lebert. Lebert yawns politely when speedboats are mentioned. He prefers sailing. . . . Carmen and Victor are prime candidates for the cavalry. They ride horses.

PUSH isn't the only thing you need to race boats," Guy says. "Restraint is necessary at times. Take me. At Lake Hopatcong I beat the starting gun 25 seconds and was disqualified. I certainly was disappointed."

An average day's routine finds our gay Tar beating up a froth on the Sound by 10 a. m. . . . Sometimes it is for medium-speed runs. . . . Again he will put-put over to Long Beach where Mayor Orenstein has made him an honorary harbormaster, and there he will tinker with the motor in the company of other sportsmen who, like himself, just can't seem to keep their hands off the machinery.

This goes on for hours, and then suddenly he will glance at his wrist in amazement and say, "Whew! I got to run." . . . Meaning that, after all, he still has an orchestra to lead.

A Farmer's Diary

Bromfield's Garden

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I TOOK my two oldest boys, 10 and 6, to visit Malabar Farm, where Louis Bromfield lives. Their young imaginations were full of visions of fine cattle, sheep and hogs, fast saddle horses and graceful Boxer dogs.

"Mr. Bromfield is very busy on a script," his secretary said, but added that we might walk about the grounds and flower garden if we chose.

Scarcely had he finished directing us, when around the corner from the direction of his study, came the author—sans hat, sans shirt, sans conventional reserve. The afternoon was hot and perspiration dropped from his chin and coursed down his tanned chest. He delighted the boys—who confided that they "came to see the pups"—by showing them a solitary whimpering baby Boxer in a soft-lined basket.

He delighted me by inviting us to see his flower garden, and entertain ourselves there as long as we desired—in a spot more widely drawn from all the world than any, I suppose, in our land.

The center is a sunken portion, where above at irregular intervals the grassy slopes are accented with lavish flowers. Many of these are strange in shape and color—peculiar in the manner of their growth. Yet the honey bees, the humming birds, the painted butterflies seem as much at home as ever. Ohio bumblebees glean what they need from flowers that grew in a Maharajah's garden—and a painted butterfly flits carelessly away from a sheltered corner where a fiery spray of the Mikado's favorite variety is blooming. Through the paths edged with native stone we went—a farmer and his two little barefoot boys—enjoying the most real and lasting wealth of Holland, Sweden, France. America alone can produce a beauty spot such as this.

Its color, tone and unusualness of plan have a mingling of all the cultures of the world. It stands, a symbol of the highest and best civilization—a mingling of them all.

When we returned from this pleasant ramble, which for me was never quite complete, we met Mr. Bromfield again—this time with a plant like an African violet in one hand and a shiny dibble in the other. I was delighted to understand that he himself is the gardener.

When we came home, the younger boy hurried to the house and all in one breath spilled out to his mother the big news of the trip. "There was only one puppy,—the others died," he said. "It was awful cute—and Mr. Bromfield shook my hand."

Use of Honey Is Most Beneficial

Honey, most delicious of all sweets, ranks as one of our most wholesome foods.

In addition to being the "dew distilled from the stars and the rainbow" as one Greek philosopher claimed, honey is a fuel-producing food which furnishes energy value, and ranks far above steak, fish, potatoes or bread in this respect.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in a release entitled "Honey High in Food Value," stated:

"Honey is one of the best of the high energy-producing foods. Because it is composed almost entirely of simple sugars, it can be assimilated with ease. Most sugars require action by the gastric and intestinal secretions to break them down into simple sugars similar to those occuring naturally in honey. Because it is easily assimilated, honey is of importance where normal digestive activities have been impaired by disease or old age. Honey can be utilized by the body without placing much of a burden on an enfeebled digestive tract and is also recognized as a valuable food for babies and young children."

Because of its essential goodness to taste, honey—the oldest known sweet—has been a favorite food since ancient times. Modern science today proved basically sound many of the once unsupported claims made for the healthful quantities of honey.

HATS ENHANCE BEAUTY

American women spend more than $300,000,000 yearly on cosmetics, according to the latest estimates. But as important as cosmetics to a woman's charm and grooming, is her hat. In fact, style experts say there is nothing a woman can buy which will do as much to enhance her beauty as a hat—the right hat, of course.

Mrs. Charles Birch gave a talk on "The Migrants." Music was in charge of Mrs. Ruth Ewing. Plans were made to hold a picnic August 21 at South park. The meeting was closed with a talk on the School of Christian Service by Mrs. H. W. Peterson. Luncheon was served at long tables decorated with garden flowers by Mrs. Charles Fichter and her committee.

Eat Wisely For Healthy Complexion

By MME. QUI VIVE

There are girls, and many women too, who run themselves ragged, who expend energy for sixteen or eighteen hours a day and give scarcely a thought to the important business of refueling their digestive motors. When they look spent and pale they resort to the rouge pad. And that does not help much. A tired, undernourished woman might as well throw her cosmetics out of the window; they haven't any material upon which to work.

Putting one's mind on food, getting the proper kind, eating at regular hours, is one way of putting glints in the eyes, roses in the cheeks, lightness in the footies and lots of silky hair on the head. Every cell of the body must have nourishment, every little pink finger nail, every tiny nerve. Many beauty ills are the direct result of a diet deficiency. Some specialists believe that baldness among men may be due to wrong eating habits. Dentist urge patients whose teeth are impaired to include more calcium in the diet. Victims of acne are urged to eat more fruits and vegetables for the mineral salts and vitamins they contain.

A healthy appetite is a blessing. There are pale, jittery women whose teeth go on edge at the sight of a lamb chop, poor dears.

How the boss of the domestic works goes about ordering groceries and how she prepares food have much to do with the progress of the good looks program.

She is familiar with the balanced diet, knows what it is all about. She never combines two or three starchy vegetables at one meal. She is strong for leafy vegetables and green salads that are good for human insides and are aids to the functioning of the internal organs. She sees that the children have plenty of rich milk, which contains almost all the food elements that are needed for well being: Instead of rich pastries for desert she offers delicious. appealing puddings and custards. She realizes that benefits come through the free use of tomato and orange juice, both of which act favorably upon the complexion.

A special problem is the school girl who is fussy about food, refusing the good things of the table because she nibbles sweets between meals. She is a steady customer at the soda fountain counter. She is susceptible to acne, does not develop normally during growth, is inclined to be temperamental or moody.

Risky for The 'Teen Age Girls

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

"Dear Dr. Myers: Am I old fashioned in disapproving of girls of 13-14 entertaining one boy or more in the home, while the parents are out for the evening?

"I have a number of friends who are college graduates and think nothing of leaving the house empty to a single boy and girl for the evening.

"My son is 14 and is being exposed to this on all sides. I have explained to him the reason I disapprove and he agrees with me, he sees the point.

"Not long ago a good friend of ours was invited to the same dinner party we were. When we met at the party she knew my son would be alone for the evening,and told her daughter to call and ask him over to their home. It so happened, my son didn't go, for several boys had come to our house and were playing ping-pong when she called. I would like to read in your column your opinion on the above. I do not feel parents are protecting their daughters enough. A stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed."

The Doctor's Reply.

You are right. All too many parents, especially among the more highly educated and well-to-do, the very ones who should know better, are exposing their early teen-age children to the kind of things you describe. They must be over-confident of their absent influence, or just not care. Maybe they are over-impressed with the prevailing doctrine of letting children learn from experience.

There are. however, some parents who are too protective of their older youths, hampering their wholesome associations. They won't allow a daughter in her twenties and her boy friend to be in the home alone. Yet some boys and girls in their early teens are apt to violate conventions and they need the home protection which the presence of a responsible adult, though not necessarily in the same room, affords.

As a rule, there is safety in numbers; yet with no adults in the house, young people sometimes do pair off. On the other hand, a number of these boys and girls together in a room can have a deal of wholesome fun.

In any home, without being suspicious, meddlesome, or unduly cautious, parents of the early teenage girl can afford to provide her in the house with adequate protection from needless social risks.

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

By MARIAN MARTIN

Here it is—your new "white collar girl" frock. It's in shirtwaister style, of course, and smart and attractive enough to do all-day duty. The collar is clean-cut and very wide in front, forming a becoming frame for your throat and face. The cuffs are perky, too, and together with the collar, may be in refreshing contrast. Notice the soft blousing of the bodice, gathered in above the waist. An inset waistband gives neat, slenderizing lines there; the smooth, slim skirt is made in just two sections. Three-quarter or long sleeves are also included in this useful young frock.

Pattern 9776 may be ordered only in misses sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3 yards 35 inch fabric and ⅞ yard contrast.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. What is a good way to help the child who prints or writes backwards or in such a way that it looks right only in a mirror (mirror writing.)

A. Have him print or write only under supervision until he gets the correct relationship. As you read to him run your finger, occasionally, under the words from left to right. Encourage him to do likewise when he reads. Correctness comes after long, patient practice. No magic about it.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I am not saying that it was an excuse, Noel," I told my niece's husband, "but it was a most natural proceeding."

"Try to be fair," I said, "and look at the thing from Mary's angle. If you have hurt her by your attitude, and — let me tell you, Noel, causeless jealousy of a woman's work or profession is a deadly hurt to her pride and her heart—she naturally would seize the weapon most ready to her hand in reprisal. Stephen Redfield's blatant and flamboyant pursuit of her placed such a weapon between her fingers.

"You know Mary's temperament —and temper," I went on, and the shadowy semblance of a smile just touched Noel's lips.

"Yes, I know them well," he said, but my nod of assent was a qualified one.

Mary Is Noel's Ideal.

"I am afraid you won't know her fully until you and she are in your seventies," I told him. "I have said this to you before, Noel, and I am going to repeat it to you.

"If your ideal wife is a demure home body, whose whole life is centered in you and in her home, then you ought to go to Mary, tell her you were mistaken when you thought you would be happy with her, and arrange for a peaceful and sympathetic dissolution of your marriage."

He started violently at the rowelling, and turned reproachful eyes upon me.

"But that isn't true," he said. "Mary always has been my ideal, and you know it. There is nobody like her in all the world."

"Then you must act in accordance with your belief," I said, "and I am afraid you will have a hard time of it. You must remember that the brilliant bird of paradise cannot emulate the wholly adorable little wren, and you must not expect her to do so."

"Mary is wholly adorable, too," Mary's loyal husband said, and with a sudden impulsive movement, I leaned over and kissed him warmly.

"I am so glad to hear you say that," I told him. "It cheers me immeasurably. I had so feared a division, a bitterness which could not be remedied."

"Not with me," Noel said with decision. "That doesn't mean I don't feel exactly the way about Redfield as I did. I told you the truth when I said I'd like to scrag his neck with my bare hands.

"But if Mary isn't interested in him, I'm not either. I'll let him alone—provided she does—from now on. I don't think I could stand seeing her looking up at him, looking—"

His voice died away, and I knew that he was again visioning Mary's rapt face upturned to Redfield's adoring one.

Trouble with Redfield Ended

"I am sure you'll never have to stand that particular thing again," I told him, for the knowledge I had gained of Stephen Redfield from Nancy Carew, to say nothing of the inferences I had drawn from his interview with me, made me sure that even if he remained in the cast of the play for a time, he would make no more advances to Mary.

I had another assurance, also—Redfield's frightened face when he heard Noel at the door, coupled with Mary's anger at Redfield's gibe at Noel, given in his absence.

No. there would be no more trouble concerning Redfield in the lives of Noel and Mary Veritzen.

But there were other questions palpably trembling on Noel's lips, and I settled myself to listen to them.

"You said Mary despised Redfield," he began tentatively. "How—"

"How do I know?" I countered. "From an unrehearsed and unpremeditated speech from Mary's own lips."

I repeated the gibe Mary had uttered concerning Stevie's not being "as valorous off the stage as he is on," and when Noel laughed aloud, I knew that my battle was won.

But he had one more question. "You said you had another hypothesis for her conduct," he said, but Mary's knock upon the outer door put a period to his sentence.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN UNBASED PHOBIA

CASES CONTINUE to pile up of players who lost points because they are afraid to bid suits unless they are topped by substantial honor holdings. There are still quite a number who won't bid even a five-carder with less than a king or queen-jack at its top. More advanced thinkers are finding it profitable to bid and rebid any five-card major suit. They know that honors are just as good or better in side suits, and that the safety of a trump suit depends on the number of cards in it, rather than on their height, to make sure the opponents are out of trumps while the declarer still has one or more.

That was real expert bidding by South, to give his side every chance to find a safe major suit fit with his kind of hand, which is poorly suited to No Trumps. One other pair in the same duplicate game also reached that contract by rather neat bidding. There North started with 1-Heart, South bid 1-Spade. North 2-clubs. South 3-Clubs, North now 3-Spades, making it clear to his partner that he had only three since he had not raised at his first chance, and then South bid 4-Spades. Each of these declarers lost two trick in spades, one in hearts. One of them made his contract because he caught the club Q, the other went down one because he played East for it.

The main point is that both of these chaps had a chance for game. At other tables the contract was 3-No Trumps, which is impossible against the correct diamond lead. In one of these instances, North bid 1-Heart, South 1-No Trump, North 2-Clubs, South 3-Clubs and North 3-No Trumps. In another, North bid 1-Club, South 2-Clubs, North 2-Hearts, South 2-Spades, North 3-Clubs because he was sure the spades were of only four cards since not bid on the first turn, and South 3-No Trumps. With these declarers, after the diamond A was taken out, they had to run game immediately, but even with the club finesse won, only eight were in sight before the lead had to be lost, whereupon they were set with diamond tricks.

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West leads the spade J against South's 4-Hearts, what constitutes perfect play the rest of the way by both sides, and how many tricks should the declarer take?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, August 9

CONFLICTING though not entirely adverse conditions prevail on this day according to the dominant astral testimonies. The inner urges and faculties will be found keyed to high levels of enterprise, adventure and innovation, with brilliant strokes of genius directed toward the inauguration of new and important undertakings. While the energies and abilities may justify this, danger lies in overdoing, over optimism and enthusiasm, to the extent of squandering the wherewithal, financial and physical, to the hazard of worthy propositions. With extravagance, speculation and high chances eliminated there might be surprising success. Intimate associations are subject to similar exaggerations. Moderation and temperate behavior will be beneficial in all affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which their own powers of restraint, calmness, moderation and sagacity may prove the determining factor of their success and happiness. Under the urge of greatly stimulated forces and faculties in the direction of major enterprises, through new and audacious methods and perhaps radical innovations, there might be great accomplishments. But these may be jeopardized by a spirit of excess, extravagance and prodigality.

Chiang Kai-Shek Leans Most On Economic Power

PEKING, China (NBSI)- Success or failure of China's continued resistance against Japanese invasion depends but 30 per cent upon military factors while 70 per cent rests with the economic power of the nation, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek declared.

The Generalissimo saw China's greatest crisis as behind him, but he added this did not mean there would not be dangers ahead before victory over Japan is achieved.

"Public opinion is at present unduly apprehensive over economic problems, the Chinese Generalissimo said. "According to my observations, China's economic position does not give much cause for alarm. The only question is whether we can undergo hardships and sacrifices, and whether we can embark upon the phrase of positive reconstruction," concluded the leader of Free China.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Stories that are fun to read aloud are suggested by the Mansfield Public Library on the children's list for the week. Walter Brooks' unusual animal characters are found in one story and there's a bit of mystery connected with Richard Hughes' collection of short stories under one title, "Don't Blame Me!"

FREDDY'S COUSIN, WEEDLY—Walter Brooks. Many children already know Freddy, the pig, and the other animals on the Bean farm. These unusual animals can speak and they are so trustworthy that Mr. and Mrs. Bean leave them in charge when they want to leave the farm.

In this story Cousin Weedly is adopted and taught not to be so timid and shy, and all the animals keep the Snedekers from taking a teapot that belonged to Mrs. Bean. There is a laugh in every chapter.

DON'T BLAME ME!—Richard Hughes. This book is a collection of short stories, all very fantastic, some a little horrible, but as a whole the book is good fun for older children. The title story concerns a very strange motorcycle, which the owner sold with the admonition, "Don't blame me!"

CHAPTER XXIX

Jimmy's handsome face paled. 'Why can't you marry me?" he demanded and his hands gripped her arms like steel. "Doris, what is it?"

Doris turned away from the searching, worried blue eyes. "George Malone is my father, Jimmy . . . I guess that explains everything."

He threw back his head and laughed. "Sweetheart, is that all? For a minute you had me worried. I thought you didn't love me."

"You mean you knew?" Doris gasped.

He kissed the tip of her nose. "What do you think?"

"But even if you do know," Doris said sadly, "I still can't marry you. It wouldn't be fair to your family."

"Darling," Jimmy Allen said distinctly, "George Malone is NOT your father."

Doris felt the hospital room whirl in dizzy circles. Oh, it couldn't be true! Jimmy was trying to make her feel better, that was all. "He showed me the proof," she insisted. "The wedding license and letter from my mother."

"Nevertheless he is not your father," Jimmy said firmly. "That's what I've been doing these last few weeks—proving that he isn't."

Relief flooded her heart. "Tell me," she begged. "Jimmy, darling, tell me all about it!"

"I got the story from a man in Mexico who knew both your father and Malone. He explained everything and Malone had to confess that this man's story was true."

"Go on," Doris urged.

"When your father left home he went to South America and he and Malone became partners in a mining deal. According to this other man, Ned Thomas, your father left your mother because he felt he was a failure. He thought he might be able to make some money somewhere else, and later send for her."

Doris wanted to believe that.

"But why didn't he write?"

"He did, but the letters were never mailed. You see, shortly after he arrived in South America he came down with tropical fever and died. There were several letters, according to Thomas, but Malone didn't mail them. Neither did he report your father's death to your mother."

"But why?"

"He figured that someday it might be useful to impersonate your father. Also he took your father's share of the mine. If your mother had known that he was dead, she could have claimed it."

"But if this man Thomas knew about it, why didn't he do something?"

Jimmy grinned. "Thomas was a willing tool then but later Malone double-crossed him. That's why he was glad enough to talk."

'And so when Malone realized that I was in love with you, he decided to blackmail me. . . . But Jimmy, when he showed me those papers I really believed that he was my father."

"You should have told me about it then," Jimmy insisted.

"When did you find out?"

"I was with the police when they caught Malone after the kidnaping. He tried to threaten me then about being your father. To keep him quiet, I promised to give him what he asked."

"You shouldn't have!"

"I felt very sure he was lying. I learned through detectives that Thomas had been with them both in South America. But I agreed to Malone's blackmailing terms to keep him quiet until I could get the information I wanted. When I got back from Mexico with the whole story in writing from Thomas, Malone couldn't say a word."

"He wasn't my father then!" Doris repeated happily. 'He wasn't!

"He most certainly was not. Your real father died in South America about eighteen years ago."

"And we can be married after all!"

Jimmy laughed. "We'd have been married anyway. You don't think I'd let you go, do you? Even if Malone were your father?"

"I wouldn't have married you in that case," Doris insisted.

"Oh yes you would," Jimmy Allen said firmly. 'I would have married you if I had to carry you down the aisle screaming and yelling."

"Oh darling!" Doris cried. "I don't know how to thank you for all you've done. If it hadn't been for you, I'd have gone through life thinking my father was a criminal."

"Well he wasn't," Jimmy repeated cheerfully. 'And now, when do we get married?'

The next few days were so perfect Doris felt she must be dreaming. With the trouble about Malone in the past, there was no longer anything to prevent her marriage to Jimmy.

"I didn't know anyone could be so happy," she told Jimmy the night before their wedding.

"Neither did I. Since I met you I've been a different man. I used to think that having a good time was all that mattered."

"I hope you'll settle down, dear," Doris told him seriously, "and take an interest in that business your grandfather left you. People can't play away their lives. You'll be happier to be busy."

"I know it," Jimmy admitted. 'And when we get back from Hawaii I'll go to work. I can talk it over with dad while we're there."

"What is your father like?" Doris asked shyly.

"Dad? Oh, he's a swell person."

Doris did not like to confess that she was afraid his parents might not approve of her, so she said, "How long will we be in Honolulu?"

"Probably a month. The folks have a house on the beach. You'll love it."

Doris did not relish spending her honeymoon with her in-laws but she did not tell her prospective husband this.

Tomorrow came and they were married. Doris saw all her dreams blossom into glorious reality. Their wedding was simple. The bride wore a gray dress and hat and a corsage of white orchids that Jimmy had given her. Bonnie, and Miss Hargrave accompanied them to the small church Jimmy had chosen for the ceremony. As Jimmy slipped the diamond band upon her finger; the late afternoon sun streamed in through the stained-glass windows and Doris knew that this moment would be the most wonderful memory she would ever have.

Later at the hotel they had champagne and Doris asked." Remember the first time we drank champagne on the boat?"

He laughed as he pressed her hand. 'Do you think I'll ever forget?"

He raised his glass "To my beautiful wife!" he proposed.

Doris was radiant with happiness.

"She's so happy it hurts," Bonnie whispered to Don, watching Doris's shining blue eyes, her gay laughter, the proud tilt to her blond head.

"It just goes to show you," Don philosophized, "how things work out for people. A few weeks ago Doris thought her life was over. She didn't have a job or any money, and she was sure that she had lost Jimmy for good."

"And now they're married," Bonnie sighed. "And Malone turned out NOT to be her father and they're going to Honolulu on their honeymoon."

Miss Hargrave smiled. I still say that it's just like an exciting movie."

And this time Doris did not object to her words. Holding tightly to her husband's arm, she said happily. "It proves that dreams do come true!"

It was a happy little group that went to the airport where Jimmy and Doris were to take a plane to Los Angeles. There were hasty farewells and many good wishes, and then they were on the plane and it was swooping from the ground.

'Happy?" Jimmy's eyes caressed her possessively.

"Happier than I ever dreamed!"

Two days later the huge liner pushing slowly from the coast of California had two ecstatic passengers at the rail. Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Allen

"It's wonderful to be on a boat again!" Doris cried. "I thought I'd never want to see one again after the trip to South America."

"But this is different,' Jimmy reminded her.

The voyage lasted for five heavenly days—five days that seemed as one. Doris was sorry to have to leave the ship.

* * *

As the magic islands came into view the old shadow crossed her happiness. Would Jimmy's family like her? Would they accept her? Looking at Jimmy standing beside her, tanned and handsome in his white suit, Doris felt that she could not bear it if anything should come between them now.

Jimmy, feeling the sudden pressure on his arm, turned to ask, "Anything wrong, sweetheart?"

She smiled. "Of course not, darling!"

Doris had an impression of blue water, white sand, and towering palms. The air was balmy and scented with flowers. Brown-skinned natives came out to the ship in small boats to dive for money thrown to them by the passengers. There was haunting music, lilting melodies

As the boat docked Doris heard her name called and she turned to accept a lei of gardenias. "How gorgeous!" she cried. "Who sent them?"

"Now who do you suppose?" Jimmy cried. "Come on, let's get started. I see mother and dad waiting for us over there."

Doris walked down the gangplank feeling small and frightened.

Jimmy's parents greeted her pleasantly. Jimmy looked like his father, a large man, still handsome in his late fifties. Mrs. Allen was small and sweet-faced, and her eyes, as blue as Jimmy's, scrutinized Doris carefully as she said, "Welcome to Honolulu!"

Her tone was kindly but Doris felt a note of restraint in her gay words.

"They must like me!" Doris thought desperately on the long ride to the Allen beach home. "I've got to make them understand how much I love him."

SETS DATE FOR COUNTY CLINIC

Health Commissioner Fixes Time of Examinations of Pre-School Children.

With the examination of more than 200 Mansfield school children in a pre-school clinic completed and more to be seen next week, Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner announced today that county school children will be examined during the last two weeks of this month.

Children entering county schools this year will have their health checked from 1 to 3 p. m. on August 18, 20, 25 and 27. Wild asked parents to have their children at the Health Department by 1 p. m. on the examination days.

The county examinations are usually held at the various schools but Wild explained that because of the lack of time and help that they would be conducted this year at the Health Department in the Municipal building.

City children examined this week were from Bowman, Prospect, Hedges, Woodlawn, Western, Brinkerhoff, Bushnell and Newman schools. Others from St. Peter's, West Fifth and Carpenter schools will be examined Monday from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m. Those children not examined this week will be seen next week, Wild said

Richlanders Pay 24 Per Cent More Sales Tax In '41

Richland countians paid 24 percent more sales tax on their increased purchases in the first seven months of this year than in a corresponding period last year, according to a report compiled by State Treasurer Don H. Ebright.

Considered one of the most reliable barometers of retail buying, the increased tax returns show the effect the defense program has had on the county's business in 1941.

The county's sales tax receipts to Aug 1 totaled $106,967, a gain of $80,108 over collections at the same time in 1940.

Maintaining the rapid pace set last January, collections for the final week of July amounted to $10,345 as compared with $8,574 for the corresponding week of 1940.

The Nazi distortions of justice and the degeneration of judges under German dictatorship are set forth in another new title, "Skeleton of Justice," by Edith Roper and Clara Leiser.

As court correspondent Edith Roper collected the details of judicial procedure under the Nazis and later escaped to America with her materials. These observations, translated by Clara Leiser, provide an analysis of why crime has reached unprecedented volume in Germany.

Honor Scientist For Discoveries In Photography

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Ultra-high speed photographs showing a golf ball flattened by the impact of a club or the pattern etched by a splash of milk drops have become familiar to magazine and newspaper readers.

Now in recognition of that epochal step in photography, Dr. Harold E. Edgerton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been awarded a medal by the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia.

Dr. Edgerton was honored for "distinguished work in science" for making it possible to take extremely short exposures by reflected light on continuously moving film. With the Edgerton camera, full frame pictures are made at the rate of 1200 a second.

Greatest value of the high-speed camera, the Institute pointed out, has been in its industrial application—analyzing behavior of high speed machinery to detect sources of vibration and wear, and to learn causes of friction in high speed tools.

GEN. JOHNSON: U. S. Seeks Way to Help Soviet Russia

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

Apparently the Russians are going to pay for the supplies we are to send them to "resist the aggressors." Maybe that is because, even under the broad terms of the "lease-lend" bill, it is a little too raw to suggest that they are a nation "resisting aggression" in the sense of that bill—much less that they are fighting to "defend democracy everywhere."

We started out to help "brave little Finland" when she was defending her democracy and resisting aggression against this same Soviet Russia. Now she is against us. We with England and France, encouraged "democratic" Poland to her destruction by resisting the aggressors and an equal partner in the aggression turned out to be these same Reds under Comrade Joey Stalin. We were shocked and wrung our hands when one by one he ravaged and swallowed the Baltic republics.

Now that he and his fellow thug, Adolf, are tearing at each other's entrails over some dispute in the division of the spoils of civilization, who has the face to say that, in helping Stalin, we are defending against an aggressor or that, in helping to preserve the bloody tyranny of Soviet Russia, we are defending democracy?

In pure cold-blooded realism and, in view of the perils we have assumed elsewhere, it cannot be denied that it is to our advantage to have Hitler and Stalin tear each other's guts out, and, the greater the mutual destruction of their strength, the better for us but in the name of sincerity and prudence, let us cast off all hypocrisy about this new alliance, let's be careful of what kind of aid we send that may be later used against us and above all, let's not marry this great, treacherous double-crossing international moral prostitute.

One of the reasons why the war-minded men in this country and their British associates have been disappointed in their appeals to our people for overwhelming unity for immediate war, is the very transparent insincerity of some of their appeals—of which "defending the democracies" and "resisting the aggressors" are prime examples.

This war is, and from the start has been, a war of empires for world domination and control.

Our part in it is to protect ourselves from being squeezed in the clash of vast conflicting ambitions. It might have been less slick and clever to have made this clear to our people from the start instead of sugaring them with idealistic slogans and sentimental mush. It might have been less clever, but it would have been much more honest and, as I believe, more effective for unity today.

Well, this Russian development and blind-pig alliance should clear up a lot of that fog and make the issues much more hard-boiled and plain. To that extent it may be a blessing in the end.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

Suddenness is fate's great gift to the little people of Broadway. The overnight miracle, the quick switch, the skyrocket. The Cinderella story. The little people go on day after day doing a little job, trying and dreaming, and not getting anywhere at all, and then it happens. Bang!

Not just a little bit at a time, step by step like climbing a ladder or a mountain, but all at once, like leaping across a chasm in one big running jump and finding gold on the other side.

Of course it doesn't happen to all the little people of Broadway, only a few of them once in a while; but it is the hope of them all, and they keep hoping because now and then, with their own eyes, they see it happen.

There was, for instance, the little girl who has been leading the rhumba band at Leon and Eddie's for more than a year. It's a good bet you don't know her name.

It's a good bet half the waiters in the place don't know her name.

Probably the only one who knows her name is the fellow who writes out her paycheck. Her name is Nerida.

She is 19 years old and weighs 98 pounds with her mascara on; her cheekbones are high and slanted and she has the kind of dimples you don't see very often.

Leon gave her her first job in what is laughingly called the professional world. Before that, she had worked in a Brooklyn factory. And all this year she led the rhumba band and thousands of people saw her but nobody noticed her much.

Until last week, Earl Carroll dropped in. He took one look at Nerida with his super-practiced eye, and decided he wanted to hire her. Not only did he want to hire her, he wanted to feature her at his Hollywood supper club and give her a big glamor build-up.

The same night, George Jessel chanced to be at the ringside. Nerida, he decided, would be perfect for a prominent role in his Autumn revue, "The High Kickers."

The next day, Nerida received two important looking letters from two important cinema studios asking her whether she would be good enough to telephone their New York offices and arrange for screen tests.

And so maybe in another year Nerida will be wearing ermine and answering fan mail, and it will be hard for her to remember the days when she worked in a factory in Brooklyn.

That's what I mean by overnight.

Of course, it was only a question of time before the swank and dignified Twenty-Two club caught a germ or two for informality from the rowdy Club Eighteen, through sheer proximity; the bistros face each other across 52nd St. and weary is the round-maker who cannot make the grade from one to the other, or vice versa.

It happened when Mr. Bert Wirk, a gentleman about town had a birthday the other day, and wound up celebrating it as gentlemen about town frequently do, at Twenty-One.

Mack Kriendler, ever the alert host, saw to it that a birthday cake, beautifully iced and topped with a candle, was brought over to Mr. Wirk, and as it was presented, he—Mack—lifted his mellow baritone in the first strains of "Happy Birthday to You."

And it was here that the Club Eighteen influence finally crept into the sedate room, dropped its cloak, and stood there shameless and rowdy. Someone (the facts are blurred at this point) called out: "Get rid of that cake"—an old Club Eighteen signal at which the birthday cake is tossed in a short lateral from one waiter to another, just as the pleased recipient is about to blow out the candle.

Well, as I say, someone cried; "Get rid of that cake" and by some inexplicable reflex, Mr. Wirk quickly threw the cake over his shoulder. The cake skimmed past a lady's $35 hat, whizzed by a movie star's ear, and landed—right in Mr. Mack Kriendler's face.

Mack took it with very good grace, laughing even more heartily than the others present, but it goes without saying that things will never be quite the same.

A lot of people who usually wander across the street to the Eighteen, didn't that night. Just stayed around hopefully, waiting for more floor show.

PLUM BROOK CARPENTERS END STRIKE

Ohio Brass Officials at Barberton Prevented From Entering Shop.

(By International News Service)

A strike of 675 A. F. of L. carpenters at the Plum Brook ordnance works ended today when the men returned to work pending negotiations for a 25-cent-an-hour raise.

The strike was called six days ago when the carpenters demanded a raise from $1.12½ cents an hour to $1.37½.

Union officials agreed to send the men back to work while the proposed raise is negotiated. Nearly 4,000 were employed on the ordnance plant project when the strike was called. The carpenters' walkout caused idleness of hundreds of others.

At Ravenna threat of a strike of 700 A. F. of L. truck drivers at the $57,000,000 shell-loading plant loomed as 20 members demanded pay increases. Efforts to prevent a walkout were being made by union officials and the Hunkin-Conkey Construction company.

A strike at the Ohio Brass company's insulator division in Barberton continued after officials and office employes were prevented from entering the struck plant by sympathizers of the CIO-United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union.

The company shortly before had been granted a court injunction restraining the union from keeping anyone from going in or out of the plant and limiting picketing.

Credit was given to Cuyahoga county Sheriff Joseph M. Sweeney for averting trouble at the Newburgh Heights plant of the Aluminum Company of America as a "dues inspection line" withdrew after being formed for two days by the CIO-National Association of Die Casting Workers to keep out non-members.

Sudden appearance of 35 deputies at the same time 20 men moved to establish a picket line blocked any picketing plans, according to a company spokesman.

Auto Dealers Invited To Talk Over Contract With Union.

Mansfield automobile dealers have been invited to meet with representatives of the International Association of Machinists, Local 1158 (Automobile Mechanics) AFL to negotiate for a union contract, R. B. Gardner, of Gardner's garage said today.

The meeting, to be at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Monday at 8 p. m., will be to consider a proposed union agreement concerning wages and working conditions, Gardner stated.

The invitation was sent to the Mansfield automobile dealers by R. D. Rust, International Machinists' representative, Gardner said.

DEFENSE BOND SALE BOOSTED

Ohio Bankers Organize Drive To Promote Project.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— John E. Wise, Willard, president of the Ohio Bankers association, said today that a state-wide program is being organized to include 860 Ohio banking offices in the promotion and sale of U. S. defense bonds.

"By early fall we hope to have several thousand Ohio bank officials, directors and employes actively at work in this field," Wise said. "We know from early reports that the sale of defense bonds is going well in Ohio, but we also know that the public is not yet entirely aware of the advantages of defense bond buying."

MONEY SAVED FOR INDUSTRY

State Insurance Payments Reduced $580.000 as Factories Hum.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Although Ohio industry is humming at near top speed and maximum benefits for injured workers will be increased as a result of recent legislation, employers will pay about $580,000 less for state industrial insurance than they did last year, it was forecast today by E. I. Evans, actuary for the state industrial commission.

Evans said greater industrial activity had accompanying favorable factors which tended to outweigh unfavorable factors.

Despite the fact that "high pressure production, changes in production and new working environments" suggested more industrial accidents, he said, "overtime and increased wage levels resulting in increased payrolls and premiums, and greater opportunities for the return to employment of injured claimants resulting in low claim cost, tend to reduce loss ratios."

A new law, which goes into effect Sept. 4, has necessitated a revision of premium rates, Evans said in a report that the general level of rates will be reduced 3.2 per cent.

Of 384 job classifications, only two will remain unchanged, 227 classifications will be decreased and 155 increased.

EDUCATOR HITS MYTH OF STORK

Declares Distrust of Children Results From Lies.

PITTSBURGH —(U.P.)— A Catholic educator speaking before the summer School of Catholic Action advised parents to get rid of the story myth it, instructing their children on sex.

Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S. J., declared yesterday that the "lies about the stork, the rubber plant and the doctor's bag" should be abolished because they "breed ultimate distrust in children and destroy confidence in parents."

"Sex instruction or training to purity starts with infancy," he said. "At adolescence or later, it is usually too late."

BARS MUSTACHE

Chief Rules Illinois Police Must Chop Whiskers.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(AP)—Superintendent Leo E. Carr has served notice that upper lip adornments no longer will be permitted among the 350 patrolmen on the Illinois state force.

Carr didn't say, in so many words, that he thought some officers were apt to spend too much time cultivating their facial fringe, but he indicated that was one consideration leading to the order.

VETERAN OHIO NURSE RETURNS DISCOURAGED BY WAR RAVAGES

(By Associated Press)

LISBON, Portugal — Alice G. Carr, an American nurse who fought poverty, famine and disease in the Balkans and Near East for more than 20 years, is homeward bound—retiring after the war made her work hopeless.

The trim, white-haired woman, a native of Yellow Springs, Ohio, who went overseas with the American expeditionary force in 1917, saw bombs and shells wipe out most of the back-breaking work she has done through thousands of days and nights in Greece.

"I have had enough," she said. "I am retiring.

"It is hopeless now. There is no food, no medicines, nothing —and no way to get any. There are just people with hunger in their eyes, staring at you. It is worse than it was 20 years ago."

Miss Carr worked with the Red Cross in Serbia, Poland Czechoslovakia after the World war.

One of her most conspicuous activities was the part she played in ridding Greece of malaria. Beginning in the mid-twenties she achieved her goal when doctors of the Rockefeller Foundation organized a campaign in 1935 to wipe out the malaria-carrying mosquito, which ranged over a wide area after leaving the century-old swamps of the Marathon plain.

For her work in Greece she was decorated by the government three times.

She also helped the Turks conquer malaria, paving the way for construction of Ankara as the modern capital of Turkey.

This is the second time she has set out for home in two decades. She went to the United States for a short visit in 1934. She is a Johns Hopkins graduate.

COUNT DELAYED

Railroad Strike Vote Result Deferred Until Sept. 5.

CHICAGO —(U.P.)— A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced today that counting of strike ballots cast by railroad union members will begin on Sept. 2 and results would be announced not later than Sept. 5.

The railroad trainmen and 18 other railway unions, claiming to represent 1,200,000 employes of the major railroads, authorized the strike vote last Tuesday when wage negotiations with the managements collapsed.

Whitney said general union chairmen would gather at Chicago early in September to tabulate the vote.

WANTS NO HAY

Would Do Away With Straw, Too, In Hay-Fever Battle.

OMAHA—(AP)—Sebastian Nigro charged in district court that straw used by a broom company flies through the air and aggravates his hay fever. He asked that it be abated and sought $25,000 damages.

And that ain't hay.

IN TRAINING

Mansfield Youths Study At Great Lakes Naval Station.

Two Mansfield youths, William Copina and Charles Quickali, jr., are in training at the U. S. Naval Training Station at Great Lakes, Ill., as apprentice seamen, it was announced today by Ninth District Naval headquarters.

While at Great Lakes the Mansfielders will undergo six weeks of intensive training in basic seamanship and naval procedure, following which they will be sent to active sea duty with the fleet or will be assigned to one of the Navy's service schools for specialized training.

Laff-a-Day

"My wife couldn't come to your party, but here's the dress she was going to wear!"

Formation of a Red Cross women's motor corps for peace time defense services has aroused all kinds of curiosity on the part of the ladies as to the style of uniform the volunteer drivers will wear. Inquiries coming into the Red Cross office concerning the corps never fail to include a question concerning the costume. The summer uniform is a regulation coat dress and overseas cap of oxford gray. Miss Lenore Van Gundia, executive secretary, explains, while the winter costume includes breeches, long, belted coat and boots. And the secretary always adds that the volunteer furnishes these things herself.

"Carrying coals to Newcastle" may be a classic example of unrewarded tasks but the city of Mansfield has a new one to offer. Because residents near the Mulberry street viaduct complained that the loose timbers in the bridge made excessive noise, the city relaid the planks and covered them with an asphalt foundation. The work was done to relieve the nerves of all of the neighbors but especially one man who was in ill health. On the day that the city completed improvement of the viaduct, the man, who would have benefited most, moved out of the city.

Howard Sword, county engineer, is bothered by "O-fillers." For some time now he says hunters have been pestering his department by filling all the "O's" in county road signs with bullets. Not only that, but Sword says when hunting is particularly bad they heave a few shells into county road grading equipment. If any casual gunners are caught, he promises, they will be given the legal works.

Not to be outdone by Mansfield where a driverless car crashed into the corner of an Isaly store two days ago, Ashland had a more destructive "run-a-way" accident last night. A huge transport truck went through a jewelry store display window after coasting down a grade and scattered rings and watches over the sidewalk. Police hurried to the accident scene to keep eager bystanders from helping to collect the jewelry. Quipsters commented that possibly the truck's motor decided it needed new "rings."

CHECK FORGED

Police Seek Man Who Fleeced City Shoe Merchant.

Mansfield police are looking today for a bad check artist who wangled a new pair of shoes, size 10-C and $8.50 in change from a Mansfield shoe store yesterday afternoon and attempted to buy some clothing from a man's store with a forged check.

Police said that a well-dressed man, between 35 and 40 years of age, "with a pleasing personality" had purchased a pair of shoes at one store and received $8.50 in change for a $15.50 check.

At the other store, the man left when a clerk began checking with a local bank. Police said the name of a Mansfield man had been forged on the check.

Clerks at the shoe store furnished police with a description of the man and workers at the clothing store confirmed the description.

PROBES THEFT AT ROADHOUSE

Sheriff Investigates Reported Burglary at Catalina Club.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson today was investigating the burglary of the Catilina club on U. S. route 42, northeast of Mansfield where $148 was stolen from the cash register early Thursday according to Willard Zehner, the proprietor.

Zehner told officers the burglar used a ladder to reach a second story window which he pried open to gain entrance to the building. He said the money was taken after he left the club after closing time.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Stricken with a paralytic stroke a year ago, David R. Wilkin, 63, prominent corporation and trial lawyer of Cleveland, was dead today at his Cleveland Heights home of coronary thrombosis.

LIFTING OF COMBAT ZONE CONSIDERED

Four American Tankers To Carry Oil To Red Army, Ickes Announces.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Lifting of the combat zone defined under the neutrality act around the northernmost tip of Scandinavia is being discussed in official quarters as a means of getting American war supplies quickly to Soviet Russia, it was understood on reliable authority today.

First indication that such a move may be in the offing came yesterday from Defense Oil Coordinator Harold L. Ickes who announced that shipments of aviation gasoline to Russia would be increased by allocating four American tankers to the service.

He said future shipments possibly would go via Archangel—Soviet Arctic port near the Russo-Finnish border—as well as to Vladivostok, the Pacific gateway to Russia.

American merchant vessels now are barred from Russian Arctic ports by the combat zone proclaimed by President Roosevelt under the neutrality act.

Its northern boundary starts at a point 800 miles south of Iceland and runs in a northeasterly direction parallel to the Norwegian coast to the tip of the Svalbard islands, which are approximately 600 miles north of the northermost point of the Scandinavian peninsula, and then cuts sharply southeast to the entrance of the White sea, on which are Russia's Arctic ports. Thus, the passage to them is blocked to American merchant vessels.

Little naval activity has been reported in this Arctic area, which, presmably, is patrolled by the British navy.

Defining these far northern waters as a combat zone was regarded as a rebuff to Russia for its invasion of Finland and to prevent goods reaching Russia for transhipment to Germany. But now that the Russian position has altered drastically the view here has changed.

The desire to send American supplies by this route is because they could be more quickly transported to the war front than if sent across the Pacific to Siberia.

Another reason is that supplies bound for Vladivostok must proceed through Japanese waters. The Japanese might try to shut off this route in order to aid Germany.

Mussolini Sends Son's Body Home For Burial Rites

PISA, Italy — (AP) — Premier Mussolini sent the body of his son Bruno to PreDappio, Il Duce's home town, for burial after a war hero's funeral procession today through the flower-strewn streets of this ancient city.

Arriving in the darkened room of the local Fascist headquarters where Bruno lay in state with two companions who died in an air crash yesterday, Mussolini paused long enough to open the casket.

Those in the room said afterward "his severe face expressed the emotional pride of his immense sorrow.

Bruno's mother, Donna Rachele; his 23-year-old widow, and his sister, Countess Edda Ciano, heavily veiled, stood aside when the coffin was taken out on the shoulders of officers of the air force and Fascist Blackshirt fighting squads.

Braves Cut Short Losing Streak, Regain Second Place

Sport Podge by Rex Hess

Richland county will have teams performing on each of the first three nights of the District No. 2 softball championship tournaments at Ashland next week.

Mansfield Athletic Supplies meet an Elyria team Monday at 9 p. m., Shelby Cycles tangle with the Ashland Garber Printers Tuesday at 9 p. m., and Yuncker Sports take on Sandusky Wednesday at 9 p. m.

Sixteen teams from 10 cities in the district will battle for the title, and pairings have been made so that possible meetings of teams from the same city are postponed until the latest possible point in the tourney's progress.

* * *

Four Ashland teams have been spotted in each of the four quarter brackets, while the three Richland county teams are in different quarter brackets, the Athletics in the first, Shelby Cycles in the second and Yuncker Sports in the third.

The first two Richland teams can't meet until the semi-finals while one of the two would have to go to the finals to meet Yuncker's.

And all three will have to play a lot of softball, so I'm told, to be in there after the first round. It's a bit early to worry about semi-finals and finals.

It isn't a bit too early to begin thinking about finals in the News-Journal city tennis tournament. Championships in several divisions will be decided this week-end at Johns park courts where seating arrangements can be made to handle as large a crowd of spectators as may rally round to see the title tilts.

Through the cooperation of the tennis association, the public parks and the players themselves, the tournament has moved along rapidly and on schedule, and interest has been kept at a high pitch throughout the tourney. So there should be a crowd at Johns park Saturday and Sunday to see the championships.

* * *

"And why," the tennis addicts ask me, "can't you be in the crowd for those championship matches too?"

Well, why not.

The racquet swingers fell down in their efforts to get me on a court swinging one of those banjo bats, but I do have energy enough to sit in a chair and watch someone else go through that exercise.

* * *

Yes, boys and girls, I will be there.
To take my tennis in a chair.
(And not a wheelchair, either.)

Handicap Headlines Thistledown Meet

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The $1,500 inaugural handicap headlines the opening program of a 41-day racing meet at Thistle Down track next Tuesday. It is a six-furlong sprint.

The sub-feature event of the initial program will be the $1,200 Whirlaway handicap at one mile and 40 yards.

Charles F. Henry, racing secretary, said he was pleased with the class of thoroughbreds nominated for the first features.

Billed for competition in the inaugural are Boy Angler owned by Max Wexler of Cleveland, Gallee, winner of the $4,000 whip and spurs handicap at Detroit; Epidor, mainstay of the A. L. Ferguson stable; Harry Dienst owned by J. W. Galbreath of Columbus, Anxiety from the Rosedale stable, Aerial Bomb, Dr. Whinny, Espino, Gold Pete jr., Dora May, Miss Ethel, Stem Winder and Scrappy W.

HAMMERIN' HANK READY TO HIT COMEBACK TRAIL

LOS ANGELES — (UP) — Hurricane Henry Armstrong, former welterweight boxing champion today prepared to hit the comeback trail after eight months of retirement.

He figures he can defeat Freddie (Red) Cochrane, who took the welterweight title from Fritzie Zivic in Newark, N. J., last week.

MEET FOR JOUST

The Mansfield Athletic Supplies softball club will meet at the store Monday at 7 p. m., leaving there for Ashland where they will play in the district tourney.

Bob Feller Edged In Extra Heats

Faulty Infield Support Costs 13-Inning Tilt.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — When the Indians skidded out of the pennant race last month, Cleveland fans consoled themselves by talking about Bob Feller and how many games he might win.

The conversation market was at a low ebb today after another Feller defeat, this time 4 to 3 at the hands of the Tigers in 13 innings. Bob now has won only one contest since July 18 and shows 20 victories and seven defeats.

* * *

He pitched well enough to take the decision yesterday despite giving up 11 bases on balls, but his infield cracked at crucial moments. Detroit collected 13 hits against 10 for the Redskins.

The Bengals won the game in the fourth extra inning on successive singles by Barney McCosky, Pinky Higgins and Bruce Campbell.

Clarence Campbell's pinch home run with two on base in the ninth tied the score and forced the tussle into overtime. The circuit smash routed Starter Johnny Gorsica and brought in Schoolboy Rowe, who gave up only two hits the rest of the distance.

* * *

The Redskins were idle today and open a three-game series with Chicago tomorrow. Two of the games will be played Sunday.

The St. Louis Cardinals are back on top of the National League seesaw today, but their position in the standings is not as important as the fact that Mort Cooper is back with his pitching magic.

Until he developed elbow trouble in June, the 27-year-old righthander figured to be the ace of Billy Southworth's pitching corps, then when he had to have an operation nobody knew whether he would pitch better—or not at all.

* * *

Cooper returned to the lineup July 27 and pitched part of the ninth inning against the Boston Braves. Then he was given a starting assignment against the poor Phillies last Sunday. He hurled a six-hit victory.

* * *

Yesterday came the real test when Cooper was sent out against the Cincinnati Reds and pitched and batted the Cardinals to a 3-2 11-inning victory that put St. Louis in front of the idle Brooklyn Dodgers again by just a shade. The Cards have a half-game lead and their percentage advantage is only .3442 to .3436.

In the only other National League game, the Pittsburgh Pirates took a 4-3 decision over the Chicago Cubs on Al Lopez' homer with two out in the ninth. It was the Pirates' sixth straight triumph and their 18th in 21 games.

The New York Yankees dropped a 9-5 verdict to the Boston Red Sox for their fifth loss in seven contests. Heber (Dick) Newsome limited the Yanks to eight hits.

* * *

The Washington Senators sent the once-hopeful Philadelphia Athletics crashing to their fifth straight defeat 5-4 on six-hit pitching by Sid Hudson and Walt Masterson. The Chicago White Sox went on a hitting spree in the last four innings of a night game, pounding out 17 hits to beat the St. Louis Browns 11-1, behind the seven-hit hurling of Buck Ross.

Tennis Title Tilts Booked

Championship Matches To Begin Tomorrow.

Championship play is scheduled to start in The News-Journal City tennis tournament tomorrow at 2 o'clock at Johns park when Bob Spear, Purdue's No. 1 man this spring, and Bob Keefe, table tennis champion and ground covering southpaw, square off in battle for the men's singles crown.

* * *

On completion of this match Lois Shuey Weingartner will defend her women's singles championship against Ann Arron, runner-up in the women's tournament for two straight years. Mrs. Weingartner, bride of a week, is the only defending champion in this year's tournament.

One of the junior championships probably will follow the Weingartner-Arron match.

Sunday afternoon at two o'clock the other junior championship will be decided, followed by men's doubles at about 3 o'clock when Spear and Bob Enos meet Thornton Moore and Bob Ellison. Moore was a member of last year's doubles championship team.

The mixed doubles championship will follow men's doubles if finalists can be determined by that time.

* * *

Moore and Ellison moved into the final of the doubles yesterday with a straight set victory over Bob Larson and Bob Meese, taking advantage of their greater experience to cut off a determined comeback by the younger duo who dropped the first set 6-0, then carried the veterans to 7-5, 6-4 in the last two sets.

* * *

Charley Franzen, seeded No. 1 in the junior singles, moved into the finals of that division with a 6-2 6-1 victory over George Perman.

Ann Arron reached the finals of women's singles for the third straight year with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Muriel Fisher.

Mancini Cops Easy Win In Home Town

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — Lenny (Boom Boom) Mancini, an east side boy who hitch-hiked to New York three years ago to make his way in the boxing game, last night showed 10,000 Youngstown fans why he is rated among the country's leading lightweights.

* * *

In his home-town debut on the annual police card at Idora park, he scored a quick technical knockout over Pete Giliand of Baltimore.

* * *

The Maryland scrapper went down in the first round and was saved by the bell. The boxing commission physician ruled he was not in shape to come out for the second, because of a lacerated eye. Mancini weighed 137½ for a two-pound advantage. The bout was set for 10 rounds.

Sonny Horne, 150, crack Niles fighter, made his pro debut in a six-rounder, defeating Don Juaz, 146, of Elyria.

DEFENDS TITLE

CHICAGO — (INS) — Mrs. Marie Evans' Shot Put was off to a good start today in defense of his national distance race championship after showing his heels to a field of six route runners in the two-mile Isaac Murphy handicap at Washington park. Shot Put beat Al Au Feu by a length. Gen. L., was third.

Welter King Joins Navy

First Titleholder To Enlist In Armed Forces.

NEW YORK — (UP) — Welterweight Champion Freddie (Red) Cochrane held the distinction today of being the first fighter to enlist in the armed forces while still holding his title.

Cochrane won the championship from Fritzie Zivic in Newark, N. J., only last week. He received his selective service notification after the fight and joined the navy yesterday to help former Heavyweight Champion Gene Tunney in the navy's physical education program.

"I've always liked the navy," he said. "I wanted to join when President Roosevelt declared a national emergency but my manager advised me to wait for a chance to win a world boxing title and that's just what I did."

Cochrane will become a boatswain's mate, first class, as soon as he takes his physical examination and will be stationed at the Norfolk, Va., naval base at $84 a month.

CAFEGO INDUCTED

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Brooklyn football Dodgers will have to get along next season without one of their star backs. George (Bad News) Cafego, former Tennessee All-American, was inducted into the army at Huntington, W. Va., today.

HURLS NO-HITTER

SCRANTON, Pa. — (INS) — Joe Wood, jr., son of Smoky Joe Wood, Yale university athletic coach and former major league star, today entered baseball's hall of fame after pitching a no-hit no-run game as Scranton defeated Albany, 5 to 0 in an eastern league night game. Wood fanned five men and walked three.

NATIONAL AMATEUR DRAWS FEW ENTRIES

NEW YORK — (UP) — Only 643 players have filed for the national amateur golf championship Aug. 25-30, the U. S. Golf Association announced today. It's the smallest entry list since 1937.

The entries include those of seven players who have been exempted from qualifying for the 150 berths in the starting field at Omaha, Neb.

Score Upsets In Court Play

Bitsy Grant-Talbert Enter Quarter-Finals.

RYE, N. Y. — (AP) — It took a couple of upsets to get Billy Talbert of Cincinnati and Bitsy Grant of Atlanta into the quarter finals of the Eastern Grass Court championships. The Ohioan, playing in the best form he has shown this year, caught eighth-seeded Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., on an off day yesterday and beat him, 6-0, 6-4. Grant out-steadied Jack Kramer of Los Angeles, ranked sixth, 6-4, 6-4.

* * *

However, they may not get past today's matches, for Talbert faces National Champion Don McNeill, who apparently is nearing last year's championship form, and Grant meets Frank Parker, a vastly improved player this season.

* * *

The fourth men's singles match and one which promises to be a standout today pits Bridegroom Frank Kovacs, the nation's third-ranking player, against Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., who is ranked tenth. Kovacs, despite the excitement caused yesterday by the announcement of his marriage on July 14 to Virginia Wolfenden, the San Francisco star, found time to gain a three-set victory over Charles Olewine of Santa Monica, Calif., and Schroeder eliminated 19-year-old Earl Cochell of Los Angeles, a colorful player who was a favorite of the galleries.

Greenberg Can Still Sock the Apple

JACKSON, Mich. — (INS) — Hank Greenberg, with nearly three months in the army under his belt, still has his batting eye and officials and inmates at the Jackson State prison were still talking today about his totally unexpected return to the game.

* * *

The boys from the reception center at Fort Custer dropped over to Jackson prison to take on the institution's baseball team. Hank was among the visitors from the camp and in no time flat he was presuaded to play first base—but for the prison nine.

Big Hank played like he was back in the Detroit Tiger lineup. He was up four times for a perfect day at bat. He knocked out a 390-foot home run, two doubles and a single to the cheers of 4,000 convicts who saw their team swamp the army boys 10 to 2.

Wolpert Fans 11 Birds As Mansfield Wins 6-4

Fostoria Pulls Triple Play To Halt One Scoring Threat

MANSFIELD'S BRAVES got back on the winning path last night with a 6 to 4 victory over the Fostoria Red Birds at the Fairground, aided by Shislia's wildness and Freddy Wolpert's best pitching turn in a month.

Bothered with a sore arm in recent weeks, Wolpert appeared in old-time form last night as he set the Birds down with nine scattered hits, fanned 11, and issued five walks.

The Braves not only ended their losing streak, they regained full possession of second place in the Ohio State league after being tied with Fostoria, and gained a full game on Fremont as the Sox dropped a 6 to 2 decision to Findlay. Mansfield is now five games behind Fremont.

Fostoria got away to a two-run lead in the second inning when Frey singled, was forced at second by Streng, Hausman was hit by a pitched ball and Shislia sliced a double to deep center.

Shislia's generosity put the Braves back in the game with a four-run splurge in the last of the second. Harry Siegbert and Bill Salem drew walks to lead off. Dick Morse laid down a sacrifice bunt. Manager Alex Clowson flied deep to center, sending Siegbert home. Bill Reinka also drew a walk, and Wolpert and Bobby Ankrum singled.

When Tim Mangan drove a double over the first base bag to start the third, and Siegbert strolled again, Shislia gave way to Pontone, making his fourth mound appearance in four days.

A single by Clowson, a life for Wolpert on Buckamier's error, and Ankrum's double scored two runs for the Braves in the fourth and completed their attack for the evening.

Fostoria picked up a run in the fifth on a walk to Joe Cannon and Kousagen's double to the left field corner, and added another in the ninth when Cannon again walked and Pruett doubled.

Ankrum, returned to his lead-off spot in the batting order, led the Mansfield attack with two doubles and a single in five times at bat and was safe a fourth time on Kousagen's error.

Salem, with three straight walks, was credited with only one time at bat.

Tonight the Braves go to Fostoria, and tomorrow night they meet Findlay in a double-header at the Fairground, with the first game scheduled at 7 o'clock.

MAKE TRIPLE PLAY

The second triple play of the entire Ohio State league season was made at the Fairground last night with the Braves as the victims. With Mangan on third, Siegbert on second, Salem on first, Dick Morse flied to Cannon in left. Pitcher Pontone cut off Cannon's throw to the plate and his throw to Kousagen at third doubled Mangan who had left the bag too soon, and got Siegbert sliding into third.

Old Mike Helps Out Boston

Veteran Ryba Appears as Trouble-Shooter.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Tucked away in an obscure corner of the American league pitching averages today in a line—"Ryba, Boston, won 6, lost 2"—that is a sort of bushel hiding the light of one of the most remarkable ball players in the business.

* * *

That gent would be old Mike Ryba, the one-man team who has done everything connected with a baseball club except cut the grass, take tickets and try to interpret one of Judge Landis' decisions. Old Mike has been knocking around the minor and major leagues for a long time, but he had to wait until he was 36 years old to settle down to one position.

He comes to mind today because here in the heat of August he has just appeared in three games in four days—as a pitcher! Any time the Red Sox get in trouble these days, Manager Joe Cronin sounds the alarm and old Mike shuffles out of the bull pen to put out the fire.

Dig behind the records and you will find that old Mike has been in 29 ball games this season and may get into 20 more. If Cronin suddenly decides to take advantage of all of Mike's talents, the old guy could be in there every day from now on.

Baseball men still speak with awe of the 1934 season when Mike was in charge of the Springfield club of the Western Association.

"I was manager and business manager," Mike said recently in recalling that hectic year. "We traveled around the league in three automobiles and I drove one of them. I usually drove the rear car so I could ride herd and see that none of the players dropped out to grab a beer

"I played every position on the club, and I can still remember my averages. As a pitcher I won 14 and lost 3. I caught about 100 games and the rest of the time I played all the positions around the infield and in the outfield. I hit .342."

* * *

Now that it has become apparent that the Red Sox aren't going anywhere in particular this season, old Mike could put on a great show if Cronin would give him the green light and let him do his stuff. He has two good acts he performs. One is to pitch the first game of a double header and catch the second one. The other is to play three innings at first base, catch three innings and pitch the last three.

At various times he has been voted the most valuable player in the American Association, International league, Middle Atlantic league, Western league and Western Association.

Old Mike never will be another Walter Johnson, but you can safely bet that when he is 45 years old he still will be playing baseball somewhere—at any position that happens to be open.

M'NEILL MEETS TALBERT IN GRASS COURT JOUST

RYE, N. Y.—(U.P.)—National Tennis Champion Don McNeill of Oklahoma City, plays William Talbert of Cincinnati today in the quarter-finals of the eastern grass courts tennis championships. Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif., opposes Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif.

Top-seeded Bobby Riggs of Clinton, S. C., and fourth-seeded Frankie Parker of Altadena, Calif., joined the casualty list yesterday. Riggs was eliminated by Wayne Sabin of Reno, Nev., 8-6, 6-3 and Parker was ousted by Bryan Grant of Atlanta, Ga., 6-4, 6-2. Sabin and Grant meet in a semi-final match tomorrow.

Lima Clashes With Warren

Winner Meets Cincinnati For Legion Crown.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Cincinnati, Lima and Warren remained today in the fight for the Ohio American Legion Junior Baseball championship.

Warren and Lima clash in the morning and Cincinnati plays the winner in the afternoon.

* * *

Louisville was the only club eliminated in yesterday's semi-final games in the state tournament, but Lima suffered its first loss and sent the three teams into the finals on even terms.

* * *

Cincinnati avenged a loss of the previous day by pounding out 11 hits off Klausing and Reed to trim Lima, 5 to 3. The clinching blow was right-fielder George Rend's double in t he seventh inning driving in the two winning runs.

* * *

Warren buried Louisville under a 16-hit barrage and won, 11 to 5. Mickey Dillen, Warren outfielder, smashed a terrific homer with the bases loaded in the 9th inning.

Herb Kropf, Louisville first sacker, had a perfect day at the plate with three hits and two walks in five times up.

SAMMY SNEAD FAVORED IN CANADIAN OPEN

TORONTO, Ont.—(U.P.)—A field of 126 golfers including 32 United States players, topped by defending champion Sammy Snead, starts competition today in the Canadian Open golf championship over the Lambton Country club course.

Snead rules as favorite with Horton Smith winner of the recent St. Paul Open, a close second choice.

Will One of These Manage Tigers?

OSCAR VITT JIMMY DYKES STEVE O'NEILL

According to reports, Del Baker's regime as manager of the Detroit Tigers will end this season. Among those mentioned as possible successors are Oscar Vitt, former manager of the Cleveland Indians and now with Portland of the Pacific Coast league; Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, and Steve O'Neill, Tiger coach.

Prothro Wails Over New Crop

Bush League Stock Discourages Doc.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Doc Prothro, back from an eight-day safari through the baseball bushes, is a little discouraged at the calibre of the new crop of players—not only for the sake of his own Phillies but for the big league in general

"The stock," said Doc, "is not so hot. And I'm not alone in that opinion, either. Look around at either league."

* * *

The Phils' manager covered a considerable section of the southern states on his ivory-hunting tour. He saw most of the clubs in the Southern Association and the Cotton States league—and he came back home shaking his head.

"I don't see much of the natural player any more," observed Prothro "I wonder where he went?"

BIG TRAINING PLANE ARRIVES HERE SATURDAY

Harrington To Fly First of Two Training Ships From Wheeling Tomorrow.

The wheels of the first of two large cabin cross-country planes to be used for the instruction of pilots being trained at the Mansfield Municipal airport for government duty will touch the ground here Saturday.

J. R. Harrington, airport manager, will fly the plane from the Wheeling, W. Va., airport Saturday morning. Similar to luxury cross-country planes, it will be equipped with the latest in navigation and blind-flying instruments.

Harrington will use this new plane, along with another of the same type, and four new acrobatic and trainer planes ,to instruct the twelve advanced civilian pilots taking a 17-weeks course here. When they graduate, the pilots will hold commercial pilots' and military flight instructors' licenses. They will be used by the government to train Air Corps fliers or for transport duty.

The new cabin plans is powered with a 300 horsepower engine and will fly at an approximate cruising speed of 170 miles per hour.

On training flights, the pilots will make trips with a thousand mile range to Chicago, Louisville, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Buffalo and other cities in this area. Manning the plane on these trips will be an advanced CPT cross-country instructor, a student pilot, a student observer, and a student navigator.

Mansfield's airport is the only one in the state giving non-college pilots training in the advanced phases of civilian pilot training. It is one of seven of its type in the country.

BUGLER FORGETS IT'S HOLIDAY

CAMP ROBINSON, Ark. —(U.P.)—The life of the bugler in an army training camp is not a happy one. The life of the bugler in an army training camp who sounds reveille at 6 a. m., on a holiday is unbearable.

To put it another way—soldiers never waste much love on the bugler.

Bugler Vernon Adams, of Kansas City, Kas., forgot that it was a holiday and blasted away in the wee hours. Other regimental buglers took up the call before they were fully awake.

The whole camp was awake—and mad!

Adams is still in hiding.

Americans spend more than $600,000,000 a year for dry cleaning.

Actress Seeking Divorce?

Screen Actress Maureen O'Hara, protege of Charles Laughton, has established residence in Reno, Nev., in a step to secure a divorce from George Brown, English film man, according to Hollywood reports. Miss O'Hara married Brown 90 minutes before she boarded a liner at London and sailed for the United States two years ago. They haven't seen each other since.

Fancy Food Will Soon Be Served At Army Camps

INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa. —(INS)—Recipes of famed Pennsylvania Dutch cooks soon may be included in army menus to help give soldiers meals "just like mom's back home."

Mary I. Barber, whose culinary talents stem from Pennsylvania Dutch ancestors, has been appointed consultant for the quartermaster general to assist in the preparation of army menus. She served in a somewhat similar capacity during the first World war.

A food consultant in the office of production management and head of the American Dietetic association, Miss Barber is touring army camps and examining menus now in use.

Hence, the time may not be far distant when spare ribs and sauerkraut with dumplings, deep dish apple pie, "schnitz and knepp" and "pahn haus" will be found on camp menus.

BLITZ FAMILY TAKES NEW NAME

LONDON—(U.P.)—Charlie Blitz, of Clapton, has had enough of his name, and has decided to get rid of it.

Neighbors, office friends, colleagues in the A. R. P. organization twitted him, asked about "Adolf" and "Hermann." They talked about things not going quite to plan.

Mrs. Blitz, too, had a lot of chaff to stand from the grocer and the butcher. And the little Blitzes at school were asked what it was like at the other end of the blitzkrieg.

So the Blitzes have decided to change their name to Bliss.

LEADERS DOZE IN DO-NOTHING MARKET RANKS

Feverish Public Spending Continues In Nation, Report Shows.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—A few specialties stepped out in front of today's stock market but many leaders continued to doze in the do-nothing ranks.

Consolidated Aircraft edged into new high ground for the year and Sears Roebuck, ex-dividend, displayed a fair amount of strength.

Mild support occasionally was accorded Western Union, Chrysler, DuPont, Woolworth and Deere.

A trifle behind were Anaconda, Kennecott, and American Telephone.

Market analysts studied the survey of Dun & Bradstreet which provided further confirmation of continued feverish public spending throughout the nation.

The review estimated this week's retail activities for the country as a whole exceeded those of the comparable 1940 week by 20 to 26 per cent.

NATCHEZ HAS SOCIAL FIGHT

Two Groups Battle Over Tourist Trade In City Mansions.

the participants will be wearing.

They look for the two groups, who until this year conducted their separate pilgrimages at different times, to go into open competition for the tourist trade with simultaneous programs and all the weapons of publicity and persuasion.

A three-day overlap of this year's pilgrimages was the incident which brought the fight to a head, but its origins go back five years.

The pilgrimage idea was born in 1931 when a garden club party for visiting women was rained out, and the Natchez Garden club instead took the guests through some of the mansions cotton kings had built when Natchez was the capital of a vast plantation area whose prosperity seemed everlasting.

So enthusiastic were the visitors that the club next year organized a regular tour. Hoopskirted costumes were added, genuine antebellum bedrooms were opened to paying guests, Confederate balls and choirs of negro spiritual singers organized. The pilgrimage developed into a two-week re-creation of the bygone life Natchez stilled dreamed of and the visitors loved.

So far, fine, but a quarrel arose between some house-owners and the club. These owners seceded, taking with them 18 of the 25 houses originally shown, and in 1937 organized the Pilgrimage Garden club to promote a second pilgrimage. New members joined both groups and soon each was showing about 20 houses.

There was some coolness between members of the rival clubs, but relations were not too bad, until the clubs turned up with overlapping pilgrimage dates. Each said the other was responsible, and there were some pretty harsh words passed around.

Then the Natchez Garden club went into court asking an injunction against the Pilgrimage club and damages because of the overlapping tours.

Now Chancellor Cutrer is the middle man.

SHOT IN HEAD, GIRL, 11, LIVES

shot before young Davis saw her. The Wilson boy witnessed the shooting.

With the Lehnhart girl at the picnic were her sister, June, 14; Joan Gordon, 10, Oak street road; Shirley Brigham, 10, and Marjorie Brigham, 8, both of 84 Raleigh avenue. The injured girl is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lehnhart.

The shooting brought a warning from Sheriff Robinson to parents against permitting boys to use rifles in populated areas where there is danger of persons being injured or killed.

"This office has tried for years to keep rifles out of the hands of boys, but we must have the cooperation of parents to do it," the sheriff said.

PLAYGROUNDS SEASON ENDS

SHELBY — The Shelby playground program comes to a close today, with the final games of the baseball league and other activities, followed by a picnic at Seltzer park this afternoon.

Director Arlo Willet reports a very successful series of activities, at both the Central and Hayes school projects.

Better equipment and the efficient personnel are due to the inclusion of the playground program in the Community Chest set-up.

To man the fleet now being contemplated, the U. S. Navy must train 16,000 officers by 1947.
